FORMER TROOPER REVEALS HALL-MILLS BRIBE

RECEIVING MONEY AFTER PROBE TIME OF MURDER

Two Witnesses In
Confession To Investigators

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 1.—Sensational revelations appeared in the Hall-Mills case today as the result of statements made by Henry L. Dickman, former New Jersey state trooper and one of the investigators of the murder mystery in 1923.

Dickman, according to Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson, has signed an affidavit for the state, in which he admits he was paid a large amount of money and told to leave New Jersey.

Dickman brought several new names into the case, some of them involved in the alleged bribe, Simpson revealed, and named two others as eye-witnesses of the murder of the Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

"His disclosures are so sensational that I can not take the responsibility for making them public," the prosecutor said. "Investigators already are on the trail of some of the persons he named, however."

"He swore he was the last man working on the case and was paid a substantial sum of money to leave New Jersey."

"Dickman has broken the case wide open."

Dickman is expected by Simpson to disclose Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "big woman," as the star witness for the state. It is possible that the prosecution may abandon its plan for application tomorrow before Supreme Court Justice Parker and County Judge Cleary, sitting as the court of oyer and terminer for severance in the trials of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the murdered pastor; her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens; their cousin, Henry de la B. Carpenter.

The revelations of Dickman are expected to have a most vital bearing on the state's plans for trial of the four for the dual murders. In many details, it is said, his statements corroborate the story told by Mrs. Gibson.

Dickman is reported to have said he feared becoming insane if he did not "come across" and "tell the prosecution" his statement taken in Castle William, Governor's Island, where he is held in an army prison, is carefully guarded by Simpson.

Immunity from prosecution has been promised Dickman by Senator Simpson. Dickman was reported as greatly relieved at having unburdened himself. He said he had been on the verge of a mental and nervous breakdown over his secrets.

From a source close to the prosecution, it was learned that Dickman, in his statement, told of writing to "friend" living in Middlesex County, asking advice as to whether to surrender after he had accepted a "huge bribe" and left New Jersey.

The friend, in reply, told Dickman he was foolish to remain in hiding and urged him to return and make a "clean breast" and face the consequences.

LAKI CASTLE TO BE ST. V. LABORATORY

PITTSBURGH, O., Oct. 1.—Jay Cooke castle on Gibraltar Island, near Erie, has been turned into a biological institution.

The palatial home erected by the famous civil war financier, who did much to furnish funds for the Union army, has been presented to Ohio State University by J. H. Stone, of Columbus, who purchased it from the Cooke estate. It will be used by students taking courses in marine biology.

Plans already have been completed for conducting the courses during next summer's vacation and about fifty students have enrolled for the work.

It is estimated that huge sums will be saved Ohiens by the preservation of fresh water fish and stimulation of that industry by the new institution.

OHIO MAY HAVE "MA"

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 1.—Ohio may yet have its "Ma" Ferguson. Miss North Nelson, of Massillon, has been elected vice president of the Republican club of Ohio Wesleyan University here at its organization meeting. Miss Nelson is a senior. Arthur Fleming, of Kenton, N.Y., and Joseph Peters, of Xenia, are the respective vice president and secretary.

Child Pleads for Aimee

WEATHER WON'T BEHAVE! NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Woe-yea, baseball fans. If you are not careful, the weatherman will get you.

He issued a bulletin today warning fans that if they don't hurry for the last but not least game of the world series, they may miss it. The forecast called for probable showers tomorrow, with slowly rising temperatures and moderate winds.

However, the same forecast demanded partly cloudy skies and possibly light showers today. And the sun was shining this morning.

CREW SUBDUES FIRE ON BRITISH VESSEL AFTER HARD BATTLE

Freighter Limping To Port—Blaze Is Still Active

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 1.—With the fire in her hold under control after a desperate battle at sea by her crew of thirty-nine, the freighter, New Britain, was proceeding to Savannah under her own steam today, according to a radio message received by the naval radio station here.

The latest message from the burning vessel declared that no one was seriously hurt. At 7:30 a. m., today, she reported her position as approximately 230 miles from Savannah.

"Fire still burning but under control," the New Britain's message said. "Plates of vessel very hot. Making ten to twelve knots; no one seriously hurt."

A fire tug of the Atlantic Towing Company was despatched from Savannah.

SELF-APPOINTED DIPLOMAT, WILL ROGERS, ADVISES CAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Coolidge this morning knows exactly what's wrong with Europe and what should be done to rectify conditions.

He got a complete earful of low-down on the situation last night from America's self-appointed diplomat, Will Rogers, by name.

The gum-chewing comedian, just returned from Europe, from whence he sent innumerable postcards of advice to the president, is a White House guest.

He wired Everett Sanders, the Coolidge secretary, yesterday afternoon that he would be in Washington for a few hours and would like, if possible, to pay his respects to the office.

When the president heard this, he directed Sanders to ascertain when Rogers' train arrived so a White House automobile might be on hand to meet him and to extend an invitation to stay overnight.

A long telegram came back immediately, it is tender being, in effect:

"Oh, boy! Isn't this swell. I've never been in the White House before. You bet I accept!"

And, in conclusion, the master of the laziest stated:

"Sanders, if this is a joke, for God's sake head me off at Philadelphia."

BANDITS WITH OHIO AUTO GET $47,000

Clothing Company Pay Roll Stolen In Baltimore—
Abandoned Car Found With Bandit
Murdered By Pals

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—Four bandits in an automobile bearing Ohio license number 966-210 today held up four employees of the L. Sonneborn and Company, clothiers, and escaped with a $47,000 pay roll.

The bandits' machine later was found abandoned in North Baltimore. One of the bandits was crumpled up dead in the back seat. Police said he, apparently, had been killed by his companions. A bullet pierced his left eye.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1.—Ohio automobile license number 966-210 was issued to Preston T. Large, of Park Lane Villa, Cleveland, last December, according to the records of the state highway department here today.

The automobile for which the license was issued was registered as a Reo phaeton.

PRIMARY DEFENSE LEAGUE IS LOSER IN REFERENDUM FIGHT

Burke And League Counsel Say Fight Will Be Carried Into November Election—Confident Of Victory

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 1.—Rebuffed in its efforts to obtain from the supreme court a writ of prohibition to prevent a referendum in the November election on the proposed constitutional amendment modifying Ohio's primary law, the Primary Defense League, headed by John F. Burke, of Elyria, former state senator, was undecided today on its next step in the matter.

"Until I have conferred with Mr. Burke, which probably will be sometime today, I do not know what further legal action, if any, we will take in the case," James A. White, counsel of the league, told International News Service.

The supreme court late yesterday dismissed the suit brought by Burke to prevent the amendment from going on the November ballot, thus balking, temporarily at least, the Primary Defense League's efforts to halt the referendum in the forthcoming election.

The suit alleged that signatures to the petitions for the referendum were obtained by fraud.

Earlier in the day, the court heard arguments on the suit, counsel for Secretary of State Thad Brown, on whom falls the duty of placing the proposed amendment on the ballot, contending there was insufficient cause shown for issuance of the writ and that the league should have sought remedial action in lower courts. This argument was upheld by the supreme court in its decision.

Regardless, however, of whether the league takes further legal steps, it will continue its efforts to defeat the proposed amendment to the constitution, White declared.

Under the existing primary law in Ohio, the voters select nominees at primary elections. The amendment proposes to give to the general assembly the right to provide by law for the nomination of all elective officers but it preserves the right to nominate by petition and, if nominations are made by the convention, the delegates to the convention shall be chosen by the direct vote of the electors. There would be no change in the manner of choosing delegates to the national conventions of political parties.

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 1.—Belief that the voters of Ohio would repudiate the proposed constitutional amendment against the present primary law was expressed here today by J. F. Burke, president of the Primary Defense League, as a result of the supreme court's action in permitting the referendum to go on the ballot at the November election.

GENERAL STRIKE PROPOSAL KILLED

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The last hope of the British coal mine strikers went glimmering today when a Central News dispatch from Ostend said that the International Miners Federation, now in session there, had rejected the proposal of English mine leaders for an international coal strike.

With starvation staring them in the face and cold weather rapidly approaching, the miners were going to the pits in large numbers, their leaders being powerless to stop them.

Two hundred thousand, or one fifth the total number of miners, had returned to work today.

OFFICIALDOM AT MARRIAGE OF 'BUCKY'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Capital society and officialdom, headed by President and Mrs. Coolidge, will mingle with luminaries of the sporting world this afternoon to witness the marriage of Stanley (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington ball club, to Elizabeth Sutherland, daughter of the alien property custodian, formerly United States senator from West Virginia.

The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride. This romance has attracted more attention than has the marriage of any Washington debutante in the past decade.

The sensational young player who twice piloted the Senators to the league championship and once to the world championship, plans to take in the first two games of the world's series at New York preliminary to a six weeks' honeymoon in Europe.

Harris' age was given as 29; Miss Sutherland's as 21.

POLISH MINISTRY RESIGNS IN BODY

WARSAW, Oct. 1.—Extreme tension today followed the resignation of the Bartel ministry as a result of the government's failure to obtain a vote of confidence on the budget proposals.

The serious nature of the friction between the enemies and adherents of President Pilsudski was indicated when several officers early today raided the bedroom of former Finance Minister Vichowski, leader of the opposition.

The ex-cabinet member was beaten into unconsciousness and a gas bomb was left in his room.

PACKET SINKS IN KANAWHA RIVER

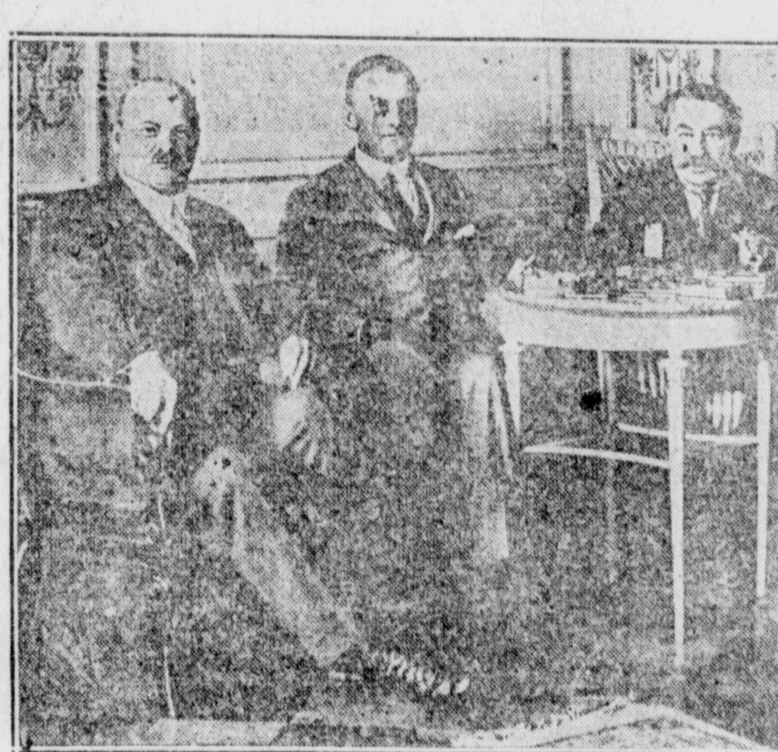

GALLIPOLIS, O., Oct. 1.—The packet Senator Cordill, plying between Pittsburgh, Pa., and Charleston, W. Va., was resting on the bottom of the Kanawha River here today after striking a pipe line and sinking in twenty feet of water last night.

The crew and a half dozen passengers took to small boats and landed safely on shore.

Captain M. O. Irwin was in command of the steamer, which is owned by the Shippers Packet Company of Pittsburgh, and is valued at $75,000.

Cincinnati divers will try to raise the ship.

They're Not So Chummy Now

Chancellor Stresemann, of Germany, Sir Austen Chamberlain, of Great Britain, and Premier Briand, of France, were photographed in friendly conference at the League of Nations meeting in Geneva. Shortly after this picture was taken, Stresemann and Briand became angered.

EVANGELIST'S HAIR MUCH DISCUSSED AT CONSPIRACY TRIAL

State's Star Witness Not Yet Called At Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Apparently ignored by all save her attorney, Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sellaf, co-defendant in conspiracy charges lodged against Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson and Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, the woman who has sworn that Mrs. McPherson offered her money to produce a "Miss X" to pose as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus temple radio operator, at Carmel today had not yet been called to the stand at the preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Sellaf, admittedly the state's star witness, has so far been sidetracked while the state has been attempting to prove that Mrs. McPherson was the woman companion of Ormiston at Carmel—at the time when her followers thought she drowned and during which time Mrs. McPherson claims she was held captive in Mexico by kidnappers.

Proceedings at the preliminary hearing were uneventful yesterday when Mrs. McPherson unloosened her mass of auburn hair to prove that she did not wear a switch, as it had sometimes been intimated. This action on her part was precipitated by the discussion of the sort of hair net Mrs. McPherson wore at the time she claims to have been kidnapped. When the woman evangelist appeared in Arizona after the alleged kidnapping, she was wearing a hair net made of brown silk. She said that she had it during the five weeks she had been held captive. Her secretary, Miss Emma Schaeffer, yesterday testified that Mrs. McPherson was wearing a hair net made of human hair the day she disappeared from Ocean Park.

Whether or not Mrs. McPherson had her wrist watch with her during the time she was missing was another angle broached yesterday. Miss Schaeffer said that she had the watch in her possession during the time, yet a photograph taken of Mrs. McPherson in Arizona shortly after her reappearance showed that she had her watch, it is said.

Mrs. McPherson makes no effort to dispute Miss Schaeffer's testimony regarding the watch. She admitted before the grand jury that she did not have the watch with her and explained its presence in Arizona by saying her mother must have brought it with her when she came from Los Angeles to meet her.

WILL USE SPECIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—In order to facilitate the transportation of their valuable collection of athletes between the second and third games of the world series, the St. Louis Cardinals have chartered a special train to carry the team from New York to St. Louis. The train will be an extra section of the American, one of the Pennsylvania railroad's crack 24-hour trains. It will leave New York at 6:05 o'clock Sunday night.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, and Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, will be on the train.

SENATOR GOFF WILL TESTIFY FOR HARRY DAUGHERTY IN CASE

Former Assistant To Take Stand On Defense Side

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Senator Guy B. Goff, of West Virginia, was in New York today, prepared to take the stand in defense of Harry M. Daugherty, former United States attorney-general, at the trial of Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, alleged property custodian, charged with conspiracy in connection with the return of $7,000,000 in war-seized assets of the American Metals Company.

Senator Goff was assistant attorney-general under Daugherty in 1921, when the claim was passed. By agreement with Max Steuer, counsel for Daugherty, Colonel William Rand, counsel for Miller, will complete his defense before the Daugherty witnesses will be heard.

George E. Williams, managing director of the alien property custodian's office under Miller, will be further cross-examined today by United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner.

Williams testified that he took full responsibility for approving the $7,000,000 claim of the Swiss society. He declared he had never seen Daugherty in his life until taking the witness stand nor had he known the late Jesse Smith, Daugherty's friend. Williams testified Miller had never shown any interest in the claim.

The government charges that Daugherty and Miller received part of $41,000 paid the late John T. King, Connecticut politician, by or putting through the claim.

Richard Merton, German financier, today.

COLONEL WILLIAMS DRIVES AUTO INTO SAN FRANCISCO BAY

Was Central Figure In Butler Booze Drinking Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Colonel Alexander Williams, marine corps officer, was drowned here early today when his car plunged from the end of a pier.

Witnesses saw the car as it sped down the embarcadero, tore its way through the curbing and plunged into the bay. They said the machine was traveling at a fast rate of speed and swerving in an alarming fashion.

Police were immediately notified and the car was raised to the surface in a few hours. Colonel Williams was trapped in the enclosed car and had no chance to escape.

Joe MacFarland, a night watchman, told officers that he saw the car driven by Colonel Williams as it sped along the waterfront. He said the machine was going at a fast rate and was swaying.

"I next heard the brakes on the machine squealing," he said, "but the driver was unable to bring the machine under control. It leaped the curb and I heard the water splash as it plunged over the railing."

Colonel Williams gained nationwide notoriety at San Diego last spring when Brigadier General Smedley Butler, his commanding officer, accused him of appearing in public in an intoxicated condition. Colonel Williams was found guilty by a court martial, the aftermath of the famous "cocktail party" which was held at his home and at which General Butler was a guest.

Following this incident, Colonel Williams was sent to San Francisco, where he has been in charge of recruiting for the marine corps. Colonel Williams wife identified the body at the city morgue a short time after police succeeded in raising the car from the bay.

But little information could be found concerning just how Colonel Williams met his death. His wife said that he called her on the telephone about five o'clock yesterday afternoon and told her he was going to have dinner with friends. She said he called again about nine o'clock and said that he was having a good time but would be home early.

"I expected he would be home about 11 o'clock," Mrs. Williams said. "When he told me he was having a good time, I told him to stay and enjoy himself."

Mrs. Williams said she did not know with whom the colonel dined. Colonel Williams was forty-eight years old and was born in New York. He had an excellent record as an officer in the marine corps.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—An official investigation will be ordered by the navy department into the accidental death of Colonel Alexander Williams, United States marine corps, who drove his automobile off the dock into San Francisco bay to his death.

The investigation will determine whether Colonel Williams' death was "in line of duty."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Confirmation of the death by drowning of Colonel Alexander Williams in San Francisco was received by the United States marine corps here today.

A message apprising headquarters of the colonel's death stated that he was endeavoring to find a boat belonging to some friends along the docks when he made a wrong turn with his automobile and plunged into the water.

News of Williams' death was received with real regret among marine corps officers here, as he was a popular officer, with a distinguished war record.

SUPREME COURT HEARS APPEAL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1.—The state supreme court today heard arguments in the appeal of the town council of Lakewood, a Cleveland suburb, from the decision of the Cuyahoga County appellate court upholding the Cuyahoga County election board's refusal to place on the November election ballot a proposed amendment to the Lakewood charter altering the town's form of government.

The election board declined to place the proposal on the ballot on the ground that petitions requesting such action should have been circulated and signed by at least ten per cent of the town's voters. The town council had voted to place the proposal before the electorate.

FEDERAL TAX AND CUSTOMS COLLECTIONS MAKE SURPLUS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Federal tax collections for the first quarter of the 1927 fiscal year and heavy gains in customs receipts have given Democratic advocates of a tax reduction at the next congress strong arguments to support their program.

If the present rate of increase in tax and customs collections is maintained throughout the year ending June 30, 1927, the government will hang up a surplus of over $500,000,000, according to figures available at the treasury today.

The American taxpayer should be given the advantage of such a huge excess of receipts over expenditures, according to Democratic congressional leaders. They plan a vigorous fight for reduction at the oncoming session and charge the Republicans with seeking to delay it only so it can be accomplished at the next session—just prior to the presidential election.

Treasury officials, however, indicated that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon would continue to oppose any material slash of rates.

RUBBER INDUSTRY BOOMS IN AKRON

AKRON, Oct. 1.—The rubber industry here is booming, according to figures announced today for the third quarter of 1926 by local rubber manufacturers.

More than 3,000,000 tires were manufactured during the period and the sales volume has exceeded any previous quarter-year in the history of the industry.

While the margin of profit has been smaller and seasonal recessions are to be considered, profits have been most satisfactory and stocks of both raw and finished products have been materially increased.

Rev. and Mrs. O. C. Sollenberger of near Tipppecanoe City, on fur-rough from the mission field in China gave very interesting talks and vivid demonstrations of mission work in China, Sunday morning and evening August 19. They had a large and interesting collection of articles brought from China. Mr. and Mrs. Sollenberger have spent seven years in Ping Ting District in North China. Especially interest-ing was Mrs. Sollenberger's description of how America helped China during the great famine some years back, when she sent money and food and men to feed the starving Chinese, how instead of merely giving the food, they choose the better way of having the Chinese men to work for it, by building an automobile road, seven-ty-two miles in length connecting two mission stations. The laborers were given grain for themselves and their families at the end of each day's labor. He said the gen-erosity of America of the Red Cross and of the missionaries had been greatly appreciated by these Chinese and endeared America to the people of China, for he said, "China responds to love."

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 63

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for forty-seven years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

FAIR ENOUGH

If there were sound reasons for the United States to enter the world court under the protection of the senate reservations, what reason is there now for the United States to refuse to enter the court upon the basis of the new resolutions adopted by the Geneva conference of representatives of nations which are members of the court?

Those resolutions provide that all five of the American reservations shall be accepted, but that the members of the court, by a two-thirds majority, may later rescind their acceptance of parts of the reservations.

If they should rescind their acceptance, the United States could then avail itself of its reserved right to withdraw from the court. Thus the interests of the United States are fully safeguarded.

On the surface it may seem that the Geneva conference accepts all the reservations merely to get the United States into the court, and that the intention is to rescind the acceptance later. But there is little reason to suppose that this is the case. The truth is, rather, that parts of the American reservations give the United States a great power which the present members of the court fear may be misused; and therefore they wish to protect themselves against such misuse.

The fourth American reservation provides in part that the statute of the world court (which is the court's constitution) shall not be amended without the consent of the United States.

The fifth American reservation provides that the court shall not, without American consent, grant any request for an advisory opinion in any matter in which the United States has or claims an interest.

Now, if the United States is admitted on the basis of these reservations, it may later develop that other powers feel strongly that the interests of international peace require that the court grant an advisory opinion despite an American objection or it may develop that other powers will feel it is vitally necessary to amend the court's constitution, despite American objection.

With America standing in the way by means of these reservations, the required end could not be obtained. What, then, do these powers do now?

They now stipulate that they shall have the right, in such contingency, to withdraw their acceptance of the American reservations; in other words, to destroy America's veto power.

If at a later date they withdraw their acceptance, they will thus be telling America that they cannot get along with her in the court. She will then have the option of staying in despite the loss of her veto power, or of getting out.

In effect, the stipulation means that the other members of the court, by a two-thirds majority, shall have the right to put America out of the court. Inasmuch as America reserves the right to withdraw at any time she sees fit, there is no reason why the other members should not have the right to expel her at any time they see fit.

In exchange for our right to resign, the other powers obtain the right to expel us. That is a fair bargain.

The senate reservations provide that the president shall sign the court protocol if the members of the court accept our reservations. The Geneva conference provides for acceptance. The fact that the members may later withdraw their acceptance doesn't matter. If they accept now, that is enough. We may then enter the court on a fair basis.

HIDING THEIR FEATHERS

Will Rogers remarks that "some Americans in Europe are traveling incognito. They are not bragging on where they come from, and nobody knows they are Americans." Apparently they are not only "not bragging on where they come from," but they adopt a policy calculated to prevent the truth from being known.

It is not necessary, and it is not desirable, that an American should "brag on where he comes from"; the mannerly thing is to refrain from bragging about anything at all. But it is a different matter for an American to definitely attempt to give the impression that he is something else than an American. Unfortunately for America, such an American is an American still.

Today's Talk

WHAT PEOPLE WANT

In the first place people do not want what you think they want. There are wants and wants. And you can't put up a rule of wants applying to Tom Smith and expect that Bill Brown's wants dovetail with his.

People like to get things that they don't expect. They like surprises. They like the out-of-the-way.

Warmed over meals are all right if you have had a taste of the original.

People want to be amused more than they want to be instructed. They like to instruct themselves. An inferior mind can give great amusement to the superior mind. But when the superior mind tries this trick on his less fortunate brothers, they fall asleep or walk out on him. Which probably explains why the college professor laughs at the clown.

None of us really knows exactly what he wants. We set a goal or see a picture in our mind that we desire made real but when the picture is finished, it has little resemblance to the one painted in our mind.

No big person wants flattery, but both big and small people crave appreciation. That is the universal want.

Most people want companionship but not necessarily a great deal of talk. It is an art to be companionable and at the same time know just when to say something and when to remain silent. Silence is so masterful at times.

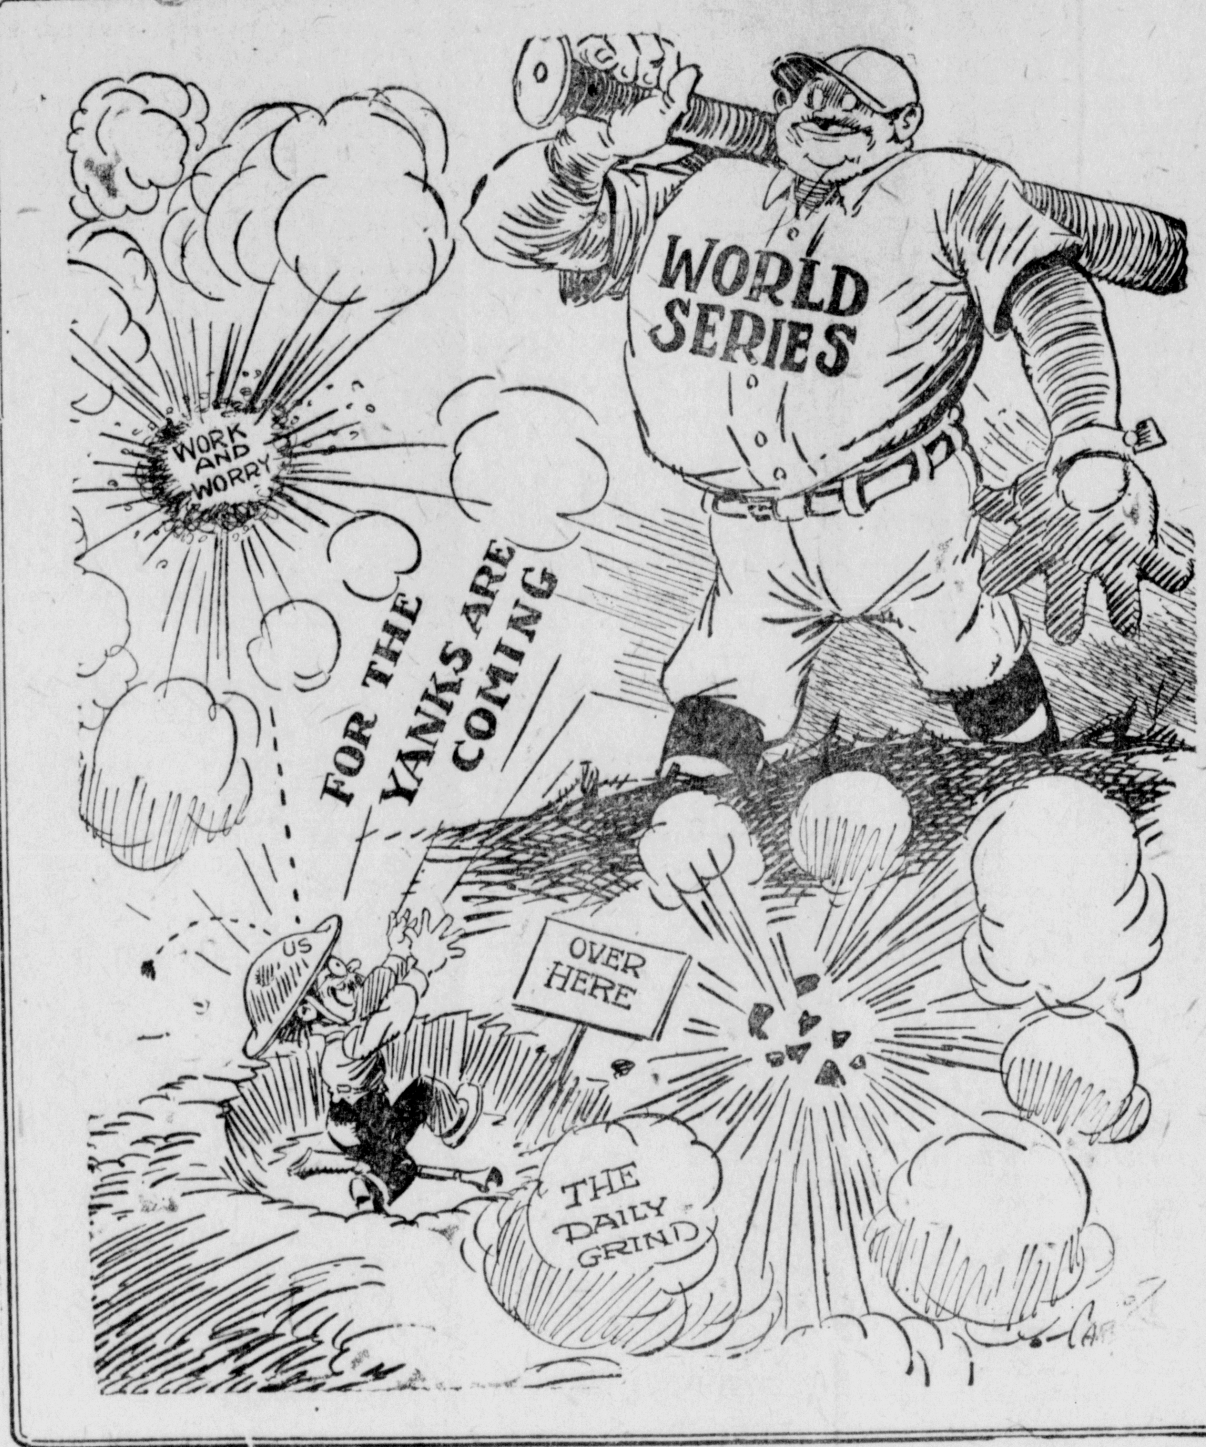

People want happiness. And the only possible way to get happiness, it seems to me, is to give it. This is the sure method whereby you get it.

The Theatre

Clark and McCullough, comedians, who hale from Springfield, Ohio, met with the unstinted approval of the Broadway theater critic of "The Billboard," official amusement magazine.

Just what must have been expected by everyone who ever cast eyes and ears on the team of Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough, under the big top, on the burlesque wheel or in the "Music Box Revue," their first legitimate musical comedy vehicle is a certain hit, the magazine says. "The Ramblers" is the title of the show and has all the attributes of a successful entertainment without the local stars. But with them it is a sure bet.

Hilarious as ever, perhaps even more than ever, is their artful low comedy, the critic says. The very best of their old material, refurbished from its burlesque show lineage and raised to the highest guarantee of laughs, is but the background for the many new "wows" furnished for the occasion of plot. Bobby Clark, with his familiar goggle-eyed spectacles painted on his merrily deceitful countenance, with his acrobatic cigar and his bouncing cane, registers a side splitter with every antic, and every line.

As a "feeder" Paul McCullough again proves that he has few equals. "For all the merit of the production which surrounds the two comedians, less of it and more of them would be preferable. Entertaining as it is, one sits in glowing patience until Clark and McCullough reappear in their next and increasingly exaggerated interlude. Not but what they do not fit aptly into the book, but the involved exposition of the story seems almost unnecessary impediment."

THE FLOWER

I wonder, little flower, if you really know your power. Know the mighty force which weaves Root and tendril, stalk and leaves? As those petals pink unfold Have you guessed the strength they hold?

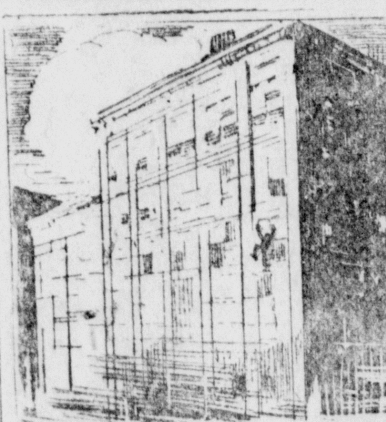

Little blossom, do you know Why upon the earth you grow? Are you conscious of the fact That you live and breathe and act? Should you wither now and die, Would your lovely neighbors sigh?

Little blossom, touched with grace You are far from common-place. You're a mission to fulfill, Needing constant strength of will. Oft I wonder, watching you, If at times, you're tempted, too.

Do you weary of the sun And the growing to be done? Do you sometimes think it vain That you brave the wind and rain? Do you think that life's severe Wanting so much beauty here?

Little blossom, have you guessed How you comfort the distressed? How you lighten with your grace Many a bleak and barren place? Are you conscious, as you grow, What this old world needs you so?

Safety Zones —FOR— Dollars

THE HUMAN FLY STUNT IN INVESTING

In placing dollars within a normal zone of safety, the investor should not pick, as a model, some conspicuous exception to a well-established rule. There are two ways in which this is likely to happen to the investor who places his funds in common stocks.

The first pitfall is lack of diversification; the second, specialities. Diversification is simply not placing all of one's eggs in one basket and then watching the basket, placed all their eggs in one basket and then watched the basket. A few of them have made fortunes in that way, and among them we might put Ford with motors, Duke with tobacco, Schwab and Carnegie with steel, Eastman with the kodak and Wrigley with chewing gum. There are many more. In fact, if we should make a list of them, he might be inclined to believe that they had the correct form of investing. Yet they are only a very few among many and are the conspicuous exceptions to the rule of diversification. In the long run the majority of investors cannot come out on the right side of the ledger following that method.

The other popular manner of investing is getting into specialities. For instance, Gillette, Commercial Solvents and Cast Iron Pipe all started with small issues of stock and advanced spectacularly. Undoubtedly at the time they started, they were speculative, highly speculative. There is no way of figuring how many many dollars have been lost in other ventures of similar degree of risk, for every dollar made in the successes. The failures undoubtedly exceed the successes enormously.

The type of dare-devil known as a "human fly" scales a 20-story building and may receive several hundred dollars, for an hour or two of effort. Very few men could duplicate that performance, even if the reward were a million dollars. No more can the average individual successfully employ the methods of business and financial geniuses. Whenever he places all his savings in one enterprise or in that type of enterprise known as a specialty he is trying to imitate the "human fly's" hazardous feat, without having the "human fly's" peculiar capabilities.

On the ground, and to be safe for investing that ground must be paved with diversification in enterprises which for many years have proved their ability to make money in a necessary field.

SUICIDE VERDICT GIVEN BY CORONER FOLLOWING PROBE

Verdict of suicide was rendered by Coroner R. L. Haines, Jamestown, following an inquest Thursday into the death of J. E. Stull, 51, Yellow Springs business man and member of the firm of Beall Electrical Co., who ended his life by firing a revolver bullet through his right temple in the company's office early Thursday morning.

Relatives believe that the man had been brooding over the death of his wife two years ago and that melancholy led to the fatal shooting.

Surviving are two brothers, Ralph, Yellow Springs, and Charles, Morrow, and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Michael, W. Main St., Xenia.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Ralph Stull in Yellow Springs, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock and again at 2 o'clock at Woodland Cemetery Chapel in Xenia. Interment will be made in Woodland.

OF

By Jack O'Donnell

Years ago—oh, so many years ago, is seems—when I first came to New York to chisel my name on "some great newspaper on Park Row," one of my first assignments was to cover a wedding at the Little Church Around the Corner, an Episcopal church, at One East Twenty-ninth Street.

As a kid out in Ohio I had often read of this romantic little edifice but somehow I had come to associations of New York. To me it was just a name. When as reporter, I saw the quaint little building nestled among the shrubs and trees in East Twenty-ninth Street, I wondered how it came by its name. I asked several persons at the wedding but none could tell me.

The other day I revisited the little church to hear the boys' choir. While there I talked with an old theatrical man who told me this story: "Years ago, while a little of the Mid-Victorian spirit lingered in Gotham, an old actor died. His friends, wishing to honor him in death as he had often been honored in life, went to one of the leading ministers on Fifth Avenue and asked him to officiate at the obsequies. The holy man was quite horrified by the request. He believed the theatre to be the anteroom of hades, or words to that effect. 'But,' he said, 'there's a little church around the corner where the funeral might be held.'"

"And now, is it any wonder that we of the theatre look upon the Little Church Around the Corner with deepest respect and love? Is it any wonder that we take our children there to be baptized, to be married, to be returned to their gods?"

"And is it strange that six of the choir boys are sons of theatre folk?"

Is it? I'll leave it to you.

CUCUMBER PICKLES

There are many recipes for cucumber pickles—both ripe and the small (gherkins). Here are two excellent ones:

Ripe Cucumber Pickles: Dissolve two and one-half teaspoons of powdered alum (level) in each quart of water used, heating the mixture to the boiling point with the cucumbers in it (sliced lengthwise) and then drawing to back for two and one-half hours. Now take the cucumbers from the alum water and chill them on ice.

Over the fire put one quart of cider vinegar in which you have put six cups of granulated sugar (heaping), one-third cup each of whole cloves and stick cinnamon, and one tablespoon of allspice berries. Bring this liquid to the boil, let simmer five minutes, then cook the halved cucumbers for twelve minutes. Remove cucumbers to a stone crock, turn the hot vinegar over them, and let stand overnight. In the morning drain the vinegar-situp off the pickles, bring it to the boiling point, and once more pour it over the pickles in the jar. Repeat this process for two more mornings, each time scalding the sirup by itself and turning it over the halved cucumbers. Weight down the pickles and store till needed in a cool dry place.

Gherkin Pickles: Merely wipe four quarts of the small unripe cucumbers with clean cloths. Place them in a stone jar and over them pour eight cups of boiling water in which you have dissolved one and one-fourth cups of salt. Let stand three days without touching. Then drain off this brine, put brine over the fire by itself, bring it to the boiling point, and again pour it over the gherkins in the crock. Let stand three days, then once more drain from pickles, bring to the boil, and turn it over the gherkins in the crock, to stand there for three more days. At the end of this period, drain gherkins from brine and wipe them with clean cloths. Over them pour one gallon of boiling water in which is dissolved one and one-fourth tablespoons of alum; let pickles stand in this alum-water five hours before draining them and cooking them a few at a time, to reimmure in the following mixture.

To one gallon of cider vinegar add three red sweet peppers cut in small pieces (seeds discarded), three sticks cinnamon, two tablespoons allspice berries, and one tablespoon of whole cloves; let boil ten minutes, before putting pickles in it. When all pickles are cooked in this mixture, place them in a crock and strain the same mixture over them.

Well Nourished Children ...are the most progressive

Now that the children are back at school again are they physically prepared for the long months of work ahead? While they eat plenty of food, is it the RIGHT food for promoting maximum development?

Good, rich milk bread should be the base of every diet. There is no food produced and ready to eat that can approach it at its cost and meet also the approximate balance of a proper ration.

Bread...as Kroger makes it is the child's best food. A perfect knowledge of the baker's art, plus the finest ingredients...which includes added milk...make it so.

Try a loaf and see with what eagerness everyone eats it.

RESERVES HOPE TO FINISH SERIES BY WINNING SUNDAY

Reserves will make a determined effort to reinstate their lost laurels and win the city baseball championship for 1926 in the seventh game of the series with the Merchants Sunday afternoon at Washington Park. It is announced by Jesse Cambliss.

Starting hour for the contest has been moved up to 2:30 o'clock in view of last Sunday's delay and the ever shortening days and Cambliss announces players of both teams must be on hand to begin promptly at that time or the game will be cancelled.

Reserves have obtained more new players for the seventh number of the series but their names have not been disclosed. Merchants may also be strengthened and each club expects a victory.

Merchants are fighting a game, uphill battle and need two straight victories to take the title while the Reserves need but one win.

BAD BREATH

USUALLY CAUSED BY IMPROPER DIGESTION IS EASILY OVERCOME

This condition which detracts so much from an otherwise fine personality and sometimes leads to serious results, is easily eliminated by a very simple treatment that will at once correct the fault and at the same time aid in the assimilation of food, regulate the system, remove gaseous conditions and leave the stomach sweet and clean. Try for a few days taking a teaspoonful of AGARENE each morning on arising and just before retiring. You will find it very pleasant to take, without any bad after-effects. You can obtain AGARENE from any druggist or sent prepaid in the United States upon receipt of $1.00. Address Hallen Chemical Corporation, Cincinnati, Ohio. —Adv.

WORLD SERIES GAMES BY RADIO

World series baseball games play by play by radio will be furnished fans by The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican.

A radio hook-up similar to that used by these papers to give the fight fans a report of the Dempsey-Tunney championship battle will be used for every game during the series.

Radio receiving sets installed on the second floor of the Gazette Building will receive the play by play account of the games and loud-speakers with amplification features will broadcast the games from windows on the second floor of the building.

The first game starts in New York Saturday at 1:30 o'clock which is 12:30 o'clock in Xenia. First announcements will start at that time. When the Yankees and Cardinals go to St. Louis for the third, fourth and fifth games, the radio report will start at 1:30 o'clock.

All fans have to do to hear this play by play game story is to line up in front of the Gazette Building, each afternoon.

Do You Sing In Your Bath?

Quite a-tuh-do was made over this practice by a lady writer in one of the Woman's Magazines and it was all very exciting and important and VERY thrilling! Very!

She went on to state that SHE did quite a bit of singing while bathing in SPITE of the fact tha she had only a medium sort of voice and she was VERY decided about how singing in one's tub showed a big, fine nature, all broke out in kindness, thoughtfulness and charity.

And this all may be so. I hope it is. ANY singing that comes from a soul bursting with happiness SOUNDS good, even if the singer sings off key. I was GOING to say a few words about the importance of good bath fixtures and accessories for really GOOD singing but I choked out that idea for it sounded so mercenary and business like, so I'll not mention that point at all.

DOC SAYRE.

Thirty
Says:-

I think that Doc should be ashamed of himself calling attention to a lady singing in her bath! If someone doesn't call a halt on him, he'll be using this column for a kinda confession magazine. In MY opinion a bath is a personal private matter NOT to be exploited at all. It's all very embarrassing to Me!

FOR MEN ONLY!

That means that you lady folks are going to read this clear through! I'll bet you do! What we wanted to suggest to the men was to think of THIS store
when they need Poker Chips,
Playing Cards, Styptic Pencils,
Razors, Strops, Soap, Tweezers
and Shaving lotions. Is that fair?

HOW'S YOUR BITE?

Are you taking first-class care of these teeth you grew so many years ago? Are they white and clean and healthy? Klenzo Toothpaste used in conjunction with Klenzo Mouth Wash is probably the finest combination for teeth perfection ever discovered.
Get BOTH at the same time.

ELECTRICITY AS WE KNOW IT!

Fans are a little outta date
NOW but Curling Irons, Electric Irons, Flashlights, Heating Pads and Hot Plates are ALWAYS desirable and knowing this we have outfitted ourselves THOR-OUGHLY in the best grades of
ALL this sort of stuff. All prices too.

FOR THE "AT HOME INVALID"

Our Hospital Dept. offers scores of little comforts to those whose lives must be spent indoors. Such things as Bed-Pans,
Drinking Tubes, Sputum Cups,
Eye Cups, Atomizers, Fountain
Syringes, Hot Water Bottles, etc.
Many other conveniences are obtainable through our catalogues.

GOT THE LAST SUMMER PICTURE?

In a few weeks now the shrubs, trees and flowers will creep away for their winter nap.
It MIGHT be a good idea to get 5 or 6 good "snaps" of how the old home looked in 1926. We carry a full line of Kodak Cameras and our "Film Service" is on a 48 hour basis. We THINK we're pretty good on this work.

"Not Possible To Classify"

I have been looking through some old books and have found some very interesting verses written on the thumb-worn pages. Wonder if you wouldn't enjoy reading them as much as I did? Here they are:

Remember well and bear in mind
A faithful friend is hard to find;
And if you find one, good and true,
Change not that old friend for a new.

If you want to go to heaven,
Look on page seventy-seven.

Speak gently! It is better far
To rule by love than fear;
Speak gently, let no harsh words mar
The good we might do here.

There are hours long departed which memory brings.
Like blossoms of Eden, to twine round the heart,
And as time rushes by on the night of his wings
They may darken awhile, but they never depart.

I sat me down and thought profound,
This maxim wise I drew—
Tis easier far to like a girl
Than make a girl like you.

When you are married
And live across the sea
Bring all your kids
And come and see me.

Remember the old "Memory Gems" you had to give each morning in school? My favorite one was "Honesty is the best policy." After I gave it I would get busy and cheat on my history examination.

DIFFERENT

"A glass bottle is made
Of glass," said Dubber.
"But a hot water bottle
Is made of rubber."

An editor in Iowa seems to run things pretty much his own way out there according to the following item which appeared in his paper recently: "Owing to lack of space and the rush of editing this issue, several births and deaths will be postponed until next week."

ELEVEN CASES WILL FACE GRAND JURY MONDAY MORNING

Eleven cases, involving twelve persons, charged principally with burglary and larceny and liquor law violations, will be considered by the October grand jury when that body convenes in Common Pleas Court Monday morning.

Francis Dudley and Raymond Chambliss are charged in two cases each with burglary and larceny and in one case with a grand larceny under entries on the criminal docket dated September 9. In connection with the same alleged offenses, Floyd Johnson is charged with burglary and larceny and grand larceny and Earl Milburn with burglary and larceny.

Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall will seek an indictment against Mrs. Eunice Cross, colored, charged with cutting her husband with intent to wound September 20.

John Clark, 19, and Charles Coates, 20, are each accused of burglary and larceny in connection with the theft of three water melons owned by H. E. Schmidt, Xenia grocer from a box car in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards, July 22.

Indictments will also be sought against Walter Hall, for driving a car while intoxicated; Ralph A. Wenrick, reckless driving; Joseph Dice, assault and battery; Jesse Chambliss, operating a motor truck without a certificate from the Public Utilities Commission, and E. H. Bogard for the same offense. State's evidence in the eleven cases will be presented to the grand jurors by Prosecutor Marshall.

PHONE COMPANY WANTS NEW RATE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1.—Approval of a new rate schedule, consisting largely of a 50c increase per month over prevailing rates, to become effective in the Canton exchange area on November 1, was asked of the state utilities commission today by the Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

The new rates would apply to business and residence phones as well as rural service.

Under the proposed new schedule, the monthly rate for the individual business telephone would be $9 and residence $4.

Thousands of persons are said to have been driven from their homes by the floods and the state government is mobilizing relief forces.

up the attempt at 7:53 this morning because of the coldness of the water. She was three miles from Dover when she abandoned further effort, having made little progress since midnight.

lin, Dayton and Mrs. George Haller, Xenia.

LITTLE BETTING ON WORLD SERIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Although New York was crowded with out-of-town fans here for the opening game of the world series between the Yankees and the Cardinals tomorrow, there has been little betting on the outcome of the event in the hotel lobbies and on the streets. Most of the play has been made in Wall Street, which has quoted the Yankees a slight favorite, both for the opening game and for the series.

There seems to be only two things that can not be had here: Reserved seats for the first three New York games and first-class hotel accommodations without previous reservations having been made.

HAS DUAL MEET

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 1.—Ohio Wesleyan University will open its cross-country season Saturday with a dual meet against Miami University at Oxford. ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN

GOLDEN TEXT. "Come thou with us, and we will do thee good." Numbers 10:23. TIME. B.C. 1490. PLACE. The Valley before Sinai. PERSONS. Moses and all the people. LESSON TEXT. Numbers 10:11-13, 29-36. 11. And it came to pass in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth day of the month, that the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle of the testimony. 12. And the children of Israel set forward according to their journeys out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud abode in the wilderness of Paran. 13. And they first took their journey according to the commandment of Jehovah by Moses. 29. And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Reuel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, "We are journeying unto the place of which Jehovah said, I will give it to you; come thou with us, and we will do thee good; for Jehovah hath spoken good concerning Israel. 30. And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred. 31. And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou shalt be to us instead of eyes. 32. And it shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that what good soever Jehovah shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee. 33. And they set forward from the mount of Jehovah three days' journey; and the ark of the covenant of Jehovah went before them three days' journey to seek out a resting-place for them. 34. And the cloud of Jehovah was over them by day, when they set forward from the camp. 35. And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, Rise up, O Jehovah, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee. 36. And when it rested, he said, Return, O Jehovah, unto the ten thousands of the thousand of Israel."

INTRODUCTION. The scripture and the story suggest the Heavenly guides in the earthly pilgrimage. We find many helpful analogies. "The path of life we walk today is as strange as that the Hebrews trod; we need the shadowy rock, as they; we need, like them, the guides of God." God furnishes many guides to man such as the Bible, His shining providences, His Holy Spirit, and Conscience. When we realize and observe the many pitfalls and dangers that confront us we can readily see the necessity of these. True concepts of these are included in a well rounded life when we accept these God given guides. When we have accepted these guides we must guide others. It is our pilgrimage, as believers, to be conscious of the Divine guidance and favor. We must be thankful for past and pray for future guidance. All who are Heavenly guided are brought into the Heavenly Canaan. God's guides are true to us and we must obey them. The tasks and business of the Hebrews were completed here at Sinai, and now they begin to pull their tents and to march towards Canaan. They thought the journey would not be a long one, but our plans do not always materialize as we plan, we often come to unexpected detours. God plans our goals and we must let Him be the absolute guide of our lives and destinies, and we will be far happier. Strangely, but surely, the lives of two men cross by the hand of God. Moses was a babe found on the rushes, on the edge of the River Nile, educated at the King's court in Egypt, while Hobab was a Midianite sheik out in the desert. Moses kills a man in Egypt and must fly for his life, and he goes to the desert where he meets Zipporah, daughter of Hobab, with whom he falls in love and marries. They live there in Midian for forty years then Moses is called back into Egypt to deliver the children of God from bondage. Thus the lives of these two men are separated again. Moses leads the MORE people through the Red Sea and for forty years toward the land of Canaan. Shortly after leaving the Red Sea Moses' father-in-law (in Exodus 18, called Jethro), visited him and gave him some excellent advice. And after leaving Sinai he again meets his father-in-law, here called Hobab, again, and Moses wanted him to go with him.

1. ON THE ROAD TO CANAAN: God has carefully planned and brought the things about that lead up to this lesson. He brought the Hebrews out of the land of bondage and started them on the road to the promised Canaan, wherein they were to be used as an example to show what God can do with a nation or people, that is willing to obey Him. Moses and Hobab were ever journeying along and after all that is what we are doing. We have various roads to travel, we are traveling in our thoughts and purposes and plans. Life is a journey, no one can hold the wheels of destiny back. We must move on, here we have no abiding city.

2. OUR WAYS PART: When we read of the way that Moses planned to go and the way that Hobab intended to go, we realize that we are not all going the same way or taking the road the same through life, and we are not going to the same place. The widest divergencies in life are the moral and spiritual. If we are all going to the same place we must all get on the same road.

3. TRAVELING TOGETHER ON THE SAME ROAD: "Come with us," said Moses to Hobab. No force caused Hobab (Jethro) to go along the road to the wilderness and he could have gone to Canaan with Moses. Men need not be separated along the moral road of life but there is ample room for us all in the church, and in the kingdom of God. And He is not willing that any of us should perish in the wilderness, because there is ample room in Heaven for us. "In my Father's house are many mansions."

4. UNSELFISHNESS: The true Christian life is unselfish. "It shall be that what good soever Jehovah shall do to us, the same will we do unto thee." This spirit is quite different from the spirit of the world. We note the selfishness of the young German monarch, William II, when he banished the great Bismarck, because he wanted all the glory of the crown to himself. How different was Paul, the veteran of Christian warfare, when he said that Christ had laid up a crown of righteousness for him in the after life, and not for him alone but for all "who loved His appearing." 11 Tim. 4:8. In the Christian life there are crowns for all of us.

5. THE SAFEST AND BEST LIFE POLICY: "For Jehovah hath spoken good concerning Israel." If we travel together "God and Christ, our fellow Christians will do us good and be of benefit to us. The Christian fellowship will do us good, because the Christian life knits itself into the life of God. Let us cease our wandering through this world and let Him lead us to that Heavenly Canaan."

6. THE ARK ADVANCES: As the Israelites journeyed "the ark of the covenant of Jehovah went before them." The ark was the symbol of God's presence and guidance. We often get impatient and want to see far ahead, but we must be content with the realization that God will guide us if we only permit Him to do so. As the cloud and pillar of fire moved before the ark, so will God point the sure and safe way for us to journey across this tangled and selfish world.

PATIENT EARTHLY TOILERS

Who weep by bending willows and sing on the hilltops; Who believe where they cannot see, and do where they cannot know; Who sob, softly, in the night, yet smile, bravely, in the day; Who reach up with the hand of faith and touch, fearlessly, the arm of God— To that great, heroic company who, unknown and unheralded, do, with a fine courage, the work of God, in God's own world. BAIRD.

BIBLE STORY

So at last they were all ready, and passed the desert once more, and came to Jacob with the wonderful news—"Joseph is still alive, and is governor over all the land of Egypt!" But the old man, little wonder, would not believe them. Yet, in the end, when they had given him all Joseph's loving messages, and he had gone out and seen the long train of Egyptian wagons waiting to carry him and his down to Egypt, the truth began to dawn upon him and he plucked up heart and said: "It is enough. Joseph, my son, is still alive. I will go and see him before I die." In due time, therefore, Jacob and his sons and all that they had made their journey into Egypt. Who so glad as Joseph when he heard that they were drawing near? He mounted his chariot and drove in haste to the eastern frontier to meet them, and when the aged father and the son whom he had deemed dead for so long met at last, they fell in one another's arms and wept for a long time without speaking a word. Then Jacob drew back, and looked upon his son, and said only this, "Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive."

So Joseph drove on before the slow-moving wagons to tell Pharaoh of the coming of his father and his brethren; and because they were shepherds, he arranged that they should dwell near the eastern border of Egypt, in the land of Goshen, lest the native Egyptians should trouble them. The desert chiefs who had conquered Egypt and who now ruled over it were, at the first, shepherds even as Jacob himself was, and, therefore, the Egyptians of native blood hated the very name of shepherd. But for that same reason, Jacob and his sons were all the more pleasing in the eyes of Pharaoh, since they were of the same stock and calling as his own ancestors.

Then Joseph brought five of his brethren, and gave them audience of his royal master, and it pleased Pharaoh to be gracious to them, and to conform to them the grant of the land of Goshen. Last of all, in the joy of his heart, Joseph brought his aged father before the king. When Jacob came into the royal presence-chamber the old man lifted his wrinkled head and blessed the King, and Pharaoh was well pleased, for in those days even royalty revered old age, and thought it no shame to be plesed by an old man, how humble so ever he might be. "My age is one hundred and thirty years; but my days have been few and evil compared with those of my fathers." Then once more Jacob blessed His Majesty, and went forth from the royal presence.

So Joseph gave to his father and his brethren of the best of the land of Egypt in Goshen, even as the King commanded, and they and all that they had settled down in their new home in peace and quietness, under the shield of the five remaining years of famine passed slowly and wearily away; and though the people of Egypt were in sore straits, yet all was done, yet Joseph's foresight prevailed, and at last the good years came back again. For twelve years more Jacob lived with his sons in Goshen, and saw and heard the wonder of Joseph's power and wisdom.

The Girl Who Dared

By May Christie

CHAPTER 15
THE BEAUTY PARLOR
"One must suffer to be beautiful," says the old French proverb. Here in New York, wherever and whenever a few women were gathered together, the conversation invariably turned to beauty topics, to rejuvenating topics, to the latest diet craze, the slimming fad.

Shop windows everywhere displayed "reducing" girdles. Almightily uncomfortable to the wearer—yes—despite the glowing "ads."

Nibbling lettuce-leaves, like rabbits, evidently brought beauty, too. One mustn't touch potatoes, bread, or sweets of any sort.

The New York women were heroic in the beauty and rejuvenation fad. They read every scrap of information in the daily papers. Whenever Mary went the talk sooner or later turned to the Voronoff or Steinach operation, to the plastic surgeon who made crooked noses straight, to the marvelous doctor who took thirty years clear off one's age by "face-lifting," removing every wrinkle, every trace of time from the human countenance.

There were chiropractors, too, who—for a pretty stiff consideration—"manipulated" the spinal column, restoring youthful circulation.

Endless massage, too, were with to combat growing avaricious.

All the New York women were interested in what is technically called the Daily Dozen.

"Morning exercises," explained Luella Loder to her uncle's secretary. "You do them each a dozen times. It only takes from ten to fifteen minutes, and the results are simply marvelous."

The results were rather wonderful, Mary thought.

But oh! the time and trouble that these women spent! Luella herself had a set of photographs which "detected" the movements of the morning drill, to which she rigidly adhered.

Mary—luckily—was slim. She could eat anything she fancied without growing over plump.

"But you'd better be careful with ice cream sodas and chocolate nut sundae," Luella had rather disconcertingly warned her, she herself having a tendency to put on weight. "They're wonderful to taste, but simply ruinous to the figure."

Today, as the two girls shot up by elevator to a very celebrated New York beauty parlor on Fifth Avenue, Mary was again forcibly reminded of the beauty craze.

The place was crammed with women. The majority of these women were not young. They were all smartly dressed, however. "Chic," they all possessed, to a greater or less degree.

"Men are lovely to us women, but they're fickle," explained Luella to the younger girl. (Luella was a softened sort of mood today, and quite communicative.)

"Fickle?"

"Yes. They tire quickly of what they've got. As they get on in years and finance, they're forever on the track of something new."

"But the married ones?" queried Mary, interested.

"Oh, they're the worst," Luella gave a laugh that somehow had just a tinge of anxiety or bitterness about it. "When they achieve their hearts' desire in a business way, they suddenly wake up and look about them. Business has absorbed them for maybe twenty years or more. They find themselves extremely rich, successful. But the wives—poor darlings—are no longer young."

Mary looked perplexed.

"Still—these women are their wives."

Luella laughed and shrugged her shoulders in sophisticated fashion.

"Yes. But for how long? Don't you know how many marriages finish in divorce?"

A tall girl in a grey linen overall led them to a booth, saying that Monsieur Jacques would be with them instantly.

The place was full of other booths, all occupied. There were several women waiting their turn.

Negro maids, white-capped white-aproned, ran hither and thither with jugs of shampoo liquid, "setting" combs and the like. The pretty girls in grey, with exquisitely coiffured heads, gave beauty treatments, face-massages, mud-masks, manicures, etc.

"Oh yes, men are fickle," resumed Luella, as she and Mary were seated in their special booth.

"All the world says they're chivalrous. And so they are too, in their way. They're frightfully generous with money. But when they're getting up in years, and have been successful down in Wall Street, you can take it from me that the majority of 'em are after youth and beauty, every time. Hence the mad rush of the wives to beauty parlors! Quaint, and just a little bit pathetic, don't you think?"

Mary quite agreed.

"If it weren't for the alimony," proceeded Miss Luella, leaning back in a swivel chair, and yawning. "I'm convinced an awful lot of men would have a new wife every three months or so and chuck the old. It's the same all the world over, practically."

"That's terrible," commented Mary, half incredulous.

"True, just the same," Luella picked up a chamois polisher, and in an abstracted manner began polishing her rosy finger nails.

"It's only the alimony that keeps them back. The judges are mighty good to women. They understand the Turkish proclivities of their own sex—or maybe I ought to say Mormonish?" And she giggled.

Mary was silent. She was quite sure that Philip Andover was not of this type.

Luella, clever, read her thought.

"Andover's young and unsuccessful, so he doesn't count as yet. But just let him have inherited that fortune, and give him another twenty years or so, and it would be quite some job for a middle-aged wife to hold him, you can bet."

Then, as Mary looked indignant, Luella added, graciously: "Of course, Philip's lived quite some time in Paris. And though Frenchmen are supposed not to be faithful to their wives in the absolute literal sense, they don't like divorce much, and they keep on respecting and caring for their wives and are good providers. Yes, I think French marriages might be successful, if you ask me."

A girl in grey came to shampoo Luella's hair, preparatory to the "permanent waving," so the discourse was temporarily interrupted.

When Luella's hair was being dried, Mary inquired: "What do you think of English women?"

"Not so frumpish as they used to be, and quite companionable with men. The Englishman is handsome and conceited, beautifully dressed. He's not such a woman-chaser as the men over here. He's not as generous, because he can't afford to be. He rather fancies himself as a little thing. I admire Englishmen terribly, but I'd fight with them. I'm spoilt, you see. They'd think so, too."

The discourse was interrupted by a white-capped negro maid with a tray.

a whole tray of "curlers." The beautifying process was about to start.

"You want Monsieur Jacques himself?" queried the girl in grey. "He charges fifty per cent extra for his services. The assistants come cheaper. If you have one of them, it's only forty dollars, but Monsieur Jacques charges sixty dollars."

Luella did not seem put about.

"I'll have Jacques. He's a wiz at 'winding,' isn't he?"

"Yes," said the grey assistant.

Then Monsieur Jacques himself arrived. He was the owner of the beauty parlor. Assisted by the girl in grey and the negro maid, he wound Luella's locks round curlers, dragging the hair so tightly at the roots that the client winced with pain. "Never mind me," said she stoically. "The tighter you pull the string, the better the curl will be. Proceed."

The entire head surface was divided into squares of less than an inch. Each strand of hair was tightly wound round a pencil-shaped bit of metal, hollow, and secured in place by string. The string dragged painfully at the roots.

But worse was yet to come. Luella knew it.

Cardboard cartons were slipped over the metal tubes, the ends tied once again with string, straining the hair away from the scalp in agonizing fashion.

A sort of chandelier of larger tubes—metal, and a size larger than the cartons—hung above Luella's head. Monsieur Jacques and the negro maid gently lowered the chandelier, and the painful task commenced, of forcing Luella's locks inside forty of these metal tubes.

Little pads of cotton wool were placed between the metal and the scalp, and further augmented by cardboard discs, the size and shape of a fifty-cent piece.

"To prevent the head being burned," explained Monsieur Jacques airily.

"Ow! Ow!" moaned Luella, as the chandelier, now containing every scrap of her hair, was raised some inches overhead.

The heat was then turned on, by means of electric switches.

"Don't move the fraction of an inch, whatever you do," cautioned the proprietor.

"Ow! Ow! It hurts! It's burning me!" Then: "Strung up to the ceiling by my hair! Blue-beard's wife isn't in it!"

A sizzling noise went on inside the metal tubes. "I've an appointment for tea at Sherry's, and I'm already late," grumbled Luella. Then, to Mary: "John Rogers doesn't like to be kept waiting."

"No, he doesn't," said a man's voice outside the booth, "and that's why he has come here himself to fetch you. Oh! good Lord!"

Luella gave a scream of pain and chagrin as, forgetful of all warnings, she jerked her head—so comical with every scrap of hair tied to the ceiling—to see John Rogers' image staring at her in amazement in the mirror.

MARINE OFFICER DROWNS IN OCEAN

FORMER TROOPER REVEALS HALL-MILLS BRIBE

RECEIVING MONEY AFTER PROBE TIME OF MURDER

Two Witnesses In
Confession To In-
vestigators

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 1.—Sensational revelations appeared in the Hall-Mills case today as the result of statements made by Henry L. Dickman, former New Jersey state trooper and one of the investigators of the murder mystery in 1923.

Dickman, according to Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson, has signed an affidavit for the state, in which he admits he was paid a large amount of money and told to leave New Jersey.

Dickman brought several new names into the case, some of them involved in the alleged bribe, Simpson revealed, and named two others as eye-witnesses of the murder of the Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

"His disclosures are so sensational that I can not take the responsibility for making them public," the prosecutor said. "Investigators already are on the trail of some of the persons he named, however."

"He swore he was the last man working on the case and was paid a substantial sum of money to leave New Jersey."

"Dickman has broken the case wide open."

Dickman is expected by Simpson to displace Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "big woman," as the star witness for the state, in the case.

The prosecution may abandon its plan for application tomorrow before Supreme Court Justice Parker and County Judge Cleary, sitting as the court of oyer and terminer, for severance in the trials of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the murdered pastor; her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, their cousin, Henry de la B. Carpenter.

The revelations of Dickman are expected to have a most vital bearing on the state's plans for trial of the four for the dual murders. In many details, it is said, his statements corroborate the story told by Mrs. Gibson.

Dickman is reported to have said he feared becoming insane if he did not "come across" and at the prosecution's statement taken in Castle William, Governor's Island, where he is held in a army prison, is carefully watched by Simpson.

Immunity from prosecution has been promised Dickman by Senator Simpson. Dickman was reported as greatly relieved at having unburdened himself. He said he had been on the verge of a mental and nervous breakdown over his secrets.

From a source close to the prosecution, it was learned that Dickman, in his statement of writing to "friend living in Middlesex County," asking advice as to whether to surrender after he had accepted a huge bribe and left New Jersey.

The friend, in reply, told Dickman he was foolish to remain in hiding and urged him to return and make a "clean breast" and face the consequences.

LAKI CASTLE TO BE ST. TV LABORATORY

PITTSBURGH, O., Oct. 1.—Jay Cooke castle on Gibraltar Island, near Erie, has been turned into a biological institution.

The palatial home erected by the famous civil war financier, who died much to furnish funds for the Union army, has been presented to Ohio State University by J. H. Stone, of Columbus, who purchased it from the Cooke estate. It will be used by students taking courses in marine biology.

Plans already have been completed for conducting the courses during next summer's vacation and about fifty students have enrolled for the work.

It is estimated that huge sums will be saved Ohioans by the preservation of fresh water fish and stimulation of that industry by the new institution.

OHIO MAY HAVE "MA"

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 1.—Ohio may yet have its "Ma" Ferguson. Miss Nelson is a senior. Arthur Fleming, of Kenton, N.Y., and Joseph Peters, of Uxbridge, are the respective resident and secretary.

WEATHER WON'T BEHAVE!

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Weathermen are warning you. If you are not careful, the weatherman will get you. He issued a bulletin today warning you and all that they might expect the worst when the big game of the world series is played tomorrow. The forecast called for probable showers tomorrow, with slowly rising temperatures and moderate winds.

However, the same forecast demanded partly cloudy skies and possibly light showers today. And the sun was shining this morning.

ON BRITISH VESSEL AFTER HARD BATTLE

Freighter Limping To Port—Blaze Is Still Active

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 1.—With the fire in her hold under control after a desperate battle at sea by her crew of thirty-nine, the freighter, New Britain, was proceeding to Savannah under her own steam today, according to a radio message received by the naval radio station here.

The latest message from the burning vessel declared that no one was seriously hurt. At 7:30 a. m., today, she reported her position as approximately 230 miles from Savannah.

"Fire still burning but under control," the New Britain's message read. "Plates of vessel very hot. Making ten to twelve knots; no one seriously hurt."

A fire tug of the Atlantic Towing Company was dispatched from Savannah.

SELF-APPOINTED DIPLOMAT,

WILL ROGERS, ADVISES CAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Coolidge this morning knows exactly what's wrong with Europe and what should be done to rectify conditions.

He got a complete earful of low-down on the situation last night from America's self-appointed diplomat, Will Rogers, by name.

The gun-chewing comedian, just returned from Europe, from whence he sent innumerable postcards of advice to the president, is a White House guest.

FANS HOUND YANKEE OFFICE WHEN SEATS FOR SERIES DENIED

Scalpers' Scandal May Be Blamed For Shortage

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Infuriated subscribers for world series tickets who have paid for seats that are not available, hounded the Yankee business office today. More than 15,000 fans have been unable to secure tickets.

The ticket shortage gave rise to numerous rumors, chief among them one that a scandalous situation would be uncovered when scalpers begin to unload—at high prices—the vast numbers of reserved seat tickets they were said to possess.

At the Yankee business office, reserved seat tickets had been sold and that 35,000 grandstand and bleacher seats would be put on sale on the morning of games one, two and six, which are to be played in this city.

Ed. Barrow, business manager, was too busy to discuss the situation.

A report that Judge Keneaw Mountain Landis, arbiter of the baseball world, had been unable to obtain a sufficient allotment of seats was denied by the judge, who is at the Hotel Roosevelt.

"I probably have not had all the tickets I want for the minor leagues—they are entitled to them, you know—or for other people throughout the country," said the judge, "but I think I have enough to cover the demand."

He was asked whether he had heard a report that the hands of tickets had fallen into the hands of speculators. He said:

"A certain percentage of tickets for the world series inevitably fall into the hands of the scalpers. There does not seem to be any way to prevent it."

respects to the office.

When the president heard this, he directed Sanders to ascertain when Rogers' train arrived so a White House automobile might be on hand to meet him and to extend an invitation to stay overnight.

A long telegram came back immediately, it's tone being, in effect:

"Oh, boy! Isn't this swell. I've never been in the White House before. You bet I accept!"

And, in conclusion, the master of the larrikin stated:

"Sanders, if this is a joke, for God's sake head me off at Philadelphia."

BANDITS WITH OHIO AUTO GET $47,000

Clothing Company Pay Roll Stolen In Baltimore— Abandoned Car Found With Bandit Murdered By Pals

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—Four bandits in an automobile bearing Ohio license number 966-210 today held up four employees of the L. Sonneborn and Company, clothiers, and escaped with a $47,000 pay roll.

The bandits' machine later was found abandoned in North Baltimore. One of the bandits was crumpled up dead in the back seat. Police said he, apparently, had been killed by his companions. A bullet pierced his left eye.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1.—Ohio automobile license number 966-210 was issued to Preston T. Large, of Park Lane Villa, Cleveland, last December, according to the records of the state highway department here today.

The automobile for which the license was issued was registered as a Reo phaeton.

PRIMARY DEFENSE LEAGUE IS LOSER IN REFERENDUM FIGHT

Burke And League Counsel Say Fight Will Be Carried Into November Election—Con- fident Of Victory

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 1.—Re-

buffed in his efforts to obtain from the supreme court a writ of prohibition to prevent a referendum in the November election on the proposed constitutional amendment modifying Ohio's primary law, the Primary Defense League, headed by John F. Burke, of Elyria, former state senator, was undecided today on its next step in the matter.

"Until I have conferred with Mr. Burke, which probably will be sometime today, I do not know what further legal action, if any, we will take in the case," James A. White, counsel of the league, told International News Service.

The supreme court late yesterday dismissed the suit brought by Burke to prevent the amendment from going on the November ballot, thus balking, temporarily at least, the Primary Defense League's efforts to halt the referendum in the forthcoming election.

The suit alleged that signatures to the petitions for the referendum were obtained by fraud.

Earlier in the day, the court heard arguments on the suit, counsel for Secretary of State Thad Brown, on whom falls the duty of placing the proposed amendment on the ballot, contending there was insufficient cause shown for issuance of the writ and that the league should have sought remedial action in lower courts. This argument was upheld by the supreme court in its decision.

Regardless, however, of whether the league takes further legal steps, it will continue its efforts to defeat the proposed amendment to the constitution, White declared.

Under the existing primary law in Ohio, the voters select nominees at primary elections. The amendment proposes to give to the general assembly the right to provide by law for the nomination of all elective officers but it preserves the right to nominate by petition and, if nominations are made by conventions, the delegates to the convention shall be chosen by the direct vote of the electors. There would be no change in the manner of choosing delegates to the national conventions of political parties.

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 1.—Belief that the voters of Ohio would repudiate the proposed constitutional amendment against the present primary law was expressed here today by J. F. Burke, president of the Primary Defense League, as a result of the supreme court's action in permitting the referendum to go on the ballot at the November election.

With starvation staring them in the face and cold weather rapidly approaching, the miners were going to the pits in large numbers, their leaders being powerless to stop them.

POLISH MINISTRY RESIGNS IN BODY

WARSAW, Oct. 1.—Extreme tension today followed the resignation of the Bartel ministry as a result of the government's failure to obtain a vote of confidence on the budget proposals.

The serious nature of the friction between the enemies and adherents of President Pilsudski was indicated when several officers of the cabinet resigned.

The ex-cabinet member was beaten into unconsciousness and a gas bomb was left in his room.

PACKET SINKS IN KANAWHA RIVER

GALLIPOLIS, O., Oct. 1.—The packet Senator Cordill, plying between Pittsburgh, Pa., and Charleston, W. Va., was resting on the bottom of the Kanawha River here today after striking a pipe line and sinking in twenty feet of water last night.

The crew and a half dozen passengers took to small boats and landed safely on shore.

Captain M. O. Irwin was in command of the steamer, which is owned by the Shippers Packet Company of Pittsburgh, and is valued at $75,000.

Cincinnati divers will try to raise the ship.

OFFICIALDOM AT MARRIAGE OF 'BUCKY'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Capital society and officialdom, headed by President and Mrs. Coolidge, will mingle with luminaries of the sporting world this afternoon to witness the marriage of Stanley (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington ball club, to Elizabeth Sutherland, daughter of the alien property custodian, formerly United States senator from West Virginia.

The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride. This romance has attracted more attention than has the marriage of any Washington debutante in the past decade.

The sensational young player who twice played the Senators to the league championship and once to the world championship, plans to take in the first two games of the world's series at New York preliminary to a six weeks' honeymoon in Europe.

Harris' age was given as 29; Miss Sutherland's as 21.

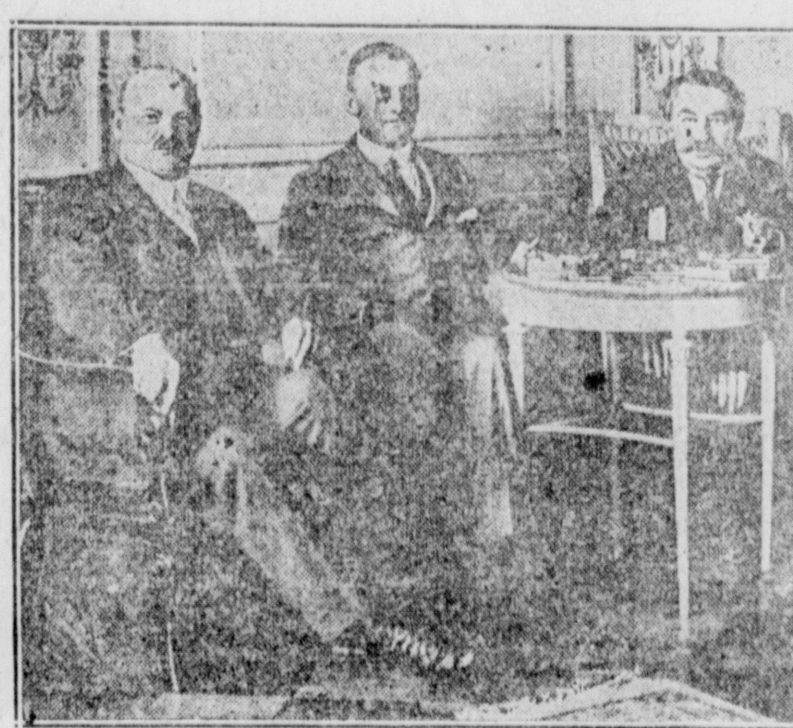

RUBBER INDUSTRY BOOMS IN AKRON

AKRON, Oct. 1.—The rubber industry here is booming, according to figures announced today for the third quarter of 1926. Local rubber manufacturers.

More than 3,000,000 tires were manufactured during the period and the sales volume has exceeded any previous quarter-year in the history of the industry.

While the margin of profit has been smaller and seasonal recessions are to be considered, profits have been most satisfactory and stocks of both raw and finished products have been materially decreased.

They're Not So Chummy Now

EVANGELIST'S HAIR MUCH DISCUSSED AT CONSPIRACY TRIAL

State's Star Witness Not Yet Called At Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Apparently ignored by all save her attorney, Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Seliff, co-defendant in conspiracy charges lodged against Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson and Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, the woman who has sworn that Mrs. McPherson offered her money to produce a "Miss X" to pose as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus temple radio operator, at Carmel today had not yet been called to the stand at the preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Seliff, admittedly the state's star witness, has so far been sidetracked while the state has been attempting to prove that Mrs. McPherson was the woman companion of Ormiston at Carmel—at the time when her followers thought her drowned and during which time Mrs. McPherson claims she was held a captive in Mexico by kidnappers.

Proceedings at the preliminary hearing were enlivened yesterday when Mrs. McPherson unloosed her mass of auburn hair to prove that she did not wear a wig, as it had sometimes been intimated.

This action on her part was precipitated by the discussion of the sort of hair net Mrs. McPherson wore at the time she claims to have been kidnapped. When the woman evangelist appeared in Arizona after the alleged kidnapping, she was wearing a hair net made of human hair the day she disappeared from Ocean Park.

Whether or not Mrs. McPherson had her wrist watch with her during the time she was missing was another angle broached yesterday. Miss Schaffer broached that she had the watch in her possession during the time, yet a photograph taken of Mrs. McPherson in Arizona shortly after her reappearance showed that she had her watch, it is said.

Mrs. McPherson makes no effort to dispute Miss Schaffer's testimony regarding the watch. She admitted before the grand jury that she did not have the watch with her and explained its presence in Arizona by saying her mother must have brought it with her when she came from Los Angeles to meet her.

WILL USE SPECIAL NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—In order to facilitate the transportation of their valuable collection of athletes between the second and third games of the world series, the St. Louis Cardinals have chartered a special train to carry the team from New York to St. Louis. The train will be an extra section of the American, one of the Pennsylvania railroad's crack 24-hour trains. It will leave New York at 6:05 o'clock Sunday night.

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, and Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, will be on the train.

Following this incident, Colonel Williams was sent to San Francisco, where he has been in charge of recruiting for the marine corps.

Colonel Williams' wife identified the body at the city morgue a short time after police succeeded in raising the car from the bay.

But little information could be found concerning just how Colonel Williams met his death. His wife said that he called her on the telephone about five o'clock yesterday afternoon and told her he was going to have dinner with friends. She said he called again about nine o'clock and said that he was having a good time but would be home early.

"I expected he would be home about 11 o'clock," Mrs. Williams said. "When he told me he was having a good time, I told him to stay and enjoy himself."

Mrs. Williams said she did not know with whom the colonel dined. Colonel Williams was forty-eight years old and was born in New York. He had an excellent record as an officer in the marine corps.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—An official investigation will be ordered by the navy department into the accidental death of Colonel Alexander Williams, United States marine corps, who drove his automobile off the dock to San Francisco bay to his death.

The investigation will determine whether Colonel Williams' death was "in line of duty."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Confirmation of the death by drowning of Colonel Alexander Williams in San Francisco was received by the United States marine corps here today.

A message apprising headquarters of the colonel's death stated that he was endeavoring to find a boat belonging to some friends along the docks when he made a wrong turn with his automobile and plunged into the water.

News of Williams' death was received with real regret among marine corps officers here, as he was a popular officer, with a distinguished war record.

SUPREME COURT HEARS APPEAL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 1.—The state supreme court today heard arguments in the appeal of the town council of Lakewood, a Cleveland suburb, from the decision of the Cuyahoga County appellate court upholding the Cuyahoga County election board's refusal to place on the November election ballot a proposed amendment to the Lakewood charter altering the town's form of government.

The election board declined to place the proposal on the ballot on the ground that petitions requesting such action should have been circulated and signed by at least ten per cent of the town's voters. The town council had voted to place the proposal before the electorate.

The American taxpayer should be given the advantage of such a huge excess of receipts over expenditures, according to Democratic congressional leaders. They plan a vigorous fight for reduction at the coming session and charge the Republicans with seeking to delay it only so it can be accomplished at the next session—just prior to the presidential election.

Treasury officials, however, indicated that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon would continue to oppose any material slash of rates.

COLONEL WILLIAMS DRIVES AUTO INTO SAN FRANCISCO BAY

Was Central Figure In Butler Booze Drink- ing Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Colonel Alexander Williams, marine corps officer, was drowned here early today when his car plunged from the end of a pier.

Witnesses saw the car as it sped down the embarcadero, tore its way through the curbing and plunged into the bay. They said the machine was traveling at a fast rate of speed and swerving in an alarming fashion.

Police were immediately notified and the car was raised to the surface in a few hours. Colonel Williams was trapped in the enclosed car and had no chance to escape.

Joe MacFarland, a night watchman, told officers that he saw the car driven by Colonel Williams as it sped along the waterfront. He said the machine was going at a fast rate and was swaying.

"I next heard the brakes on the machine squealing," he said, "but the driver was unable to bring the machine under control. It leaped the curb and I heard the water splash as it plunged over the railing."

Colonel Williams gained nationwide notoriety at San Diego last spring when Brigadier General Smedley Butler, his commanding officer, accused him of appearing in public in an intoxicated condition. Colonel Williams was found guilty by a court martial, the aftermath of the famous "cocktail party" which was held at his home and at which General Butler was a guest.

Following this incident, Colonel Williams was sent to San Francisco, where he has been in charge of recruiting for the marine corps.

Colonel Williams' wife identified the body at the city morgue a short time after police succeeded in raising the car from the bay.

But little information could be found concerning just how Colonel Williams met his death. His wife said that he called her on the telephone about five o'clock yesterday afternoon and told her he was going to have dinner with friends. She said he called again about nine o'clock and said that he was having a good time but would be home early.

"I expected he would be home about 11 o'clock," Mrs. Williams said. "When he told me he was having a good time, I told him to stay and enjoy himself."

Mrs. Williams said she did not know with whom the colonel dined. Colonel Williams was forty-eight years old and was born in New York. He had an excellent record as an officer in the marine corps.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—An official investigation will be ordered by the navy department into the accidental death of Colonel Alexander Williams, United States marine corps, who drove his automobile off the dock to San Francisco bay to his death.

The investigation will determine whether Colonel Williams' death was "in line of duty."

Rev. and Mrs. O. C. Sollenberger of near Tippencanoe City, on furlough from the mission field in China gave very interesting talks and vivid demonstrations of mission work in China, Sunday morning and evening August 19. They had a large and interesting collection of articles brought from China. Mr. and Mrs. Sollenberger have spent seven years in Ping Ting District in North China. Especially interesting was Mrs. Sollenberger's description of how America helped China during the great famine some years back, when she sent money and food and men to feed the starving Chinese, how instead of merely giving the food, they choose the better way of having the Chinese men to work for it, by building an automobile road, seventy-two miles in length connecting two mission stations. The laborers were given grain for themselves and their families at the end of each day's labor. He said the generosity of America of the Red Cross and of the missionaries had been greatly appreciated by these Chinese and endeared America to the people of China, for he said, "China responds to love."

The Faithful Workers of S. S. Class met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stewart Thursday evening. Several amusing games and stunts were introduced by the special entertainment committee, Mrs. Clistie Sipe and Miss Ella Sipe. Muskmelon was served by the hosts.

Ed was assistant conductor of the party of twenty-two last summer.

Prof. Eldemiller was pleasantly surprised when presented with a gift of $100.00 in cash toward payment on exchange of Fords. He wishes to thank all the members and friends who contributed to this gift and to express his sincerest appreciation and gratitude not only for the financial assistance, but also for the confidence and the appreciation of his work shown by the donors. Also of the thoughtfulness of Mr. Lawrence Snyder, president of the Men's Division of the Faithful Workers S. S. Class who obtained the contributions.

Members of the Women's division of the Faithful Workers S. S. Class have enjoyed the very interesting description given in a latter written by the president of the class Mrs. Charles Stewart of sessions of the state conference of the Church of the Brethren near Cambridge, Neb. which she attended. HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH

W. K. Kellogg

Worn and weary—but not from work

ONLY a few months ago he was feeling fine. A full desk meant nothing more than a full day—a challenge which he eagerly accepted. Life was worth living then. . . . But now . . . now he seemed eternally tired, lifeless, exhausted. His head was dull and achy. Work was a frightful bore. Life was barren of interest. Where would it all end? . . .

In the work-a-day world there are thousands of men and women who suffer from constipation. They try this and that, forever seeking relief and seldom finding it. Yet there is sure, permanent relief from this disease—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the system its fiber remains unchanged. It remains a bulk food, as doctors call it. Because of its bulk it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It stimulates the flow of digestive juices. It absorbs and carries moisture into the intestine and prompts it to natural, healthy action.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief, or your grocer will refund the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit; with other cereals; use in soups, cook in hot cereals, or in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the original ALL-BRAN—a 100% bran product. That is why doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Get a package today. Also served in all hotels and restaurants.

MISS HOLLENCAMP BRIDE OF MR. RICHARD BAIRD

Miss Katherine Hollencamp, older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hollencamp, E. Second St., and Mr. Richard Baird, Dayton, were united in marriage at St. Bridget's rectory, Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, the Rev. Father David Powers officiating.

The couple was attended by the bride's cousin, Miss Mary Catherine Brennan, Dayton, and her brother, Mr. Thomas Hollencamp. Miss Hollencamp wore a charming creation of delicately tinted pink tulle. The flesh tones shaded into rose in the skirt of the frock and the irregular hemline was edged with tulle. Her footwear were of silver. The only jewelry she wore was a platinum bangle, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Brennan wore a bouffant creation of a deeper pink. Her slippers were of silver also. Both the bride and her maid carried old fashion bouquets of rose buds, jasmine and other dainty flowers, with lace frills and wore clusters of roses in their hair.

Dinner for members of the immediate family was served at the Hollencamp home immediately after the ceremony. Covers were laid for twenty. The rooms were fragrant with garden flowers while a pink and white color scheme predominated in the dining room. Candle glow furnished the only light, from tall pink tapers through the rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Baird left Thursday night on a motor trip East. They will reside in Dayton on their return. Mr. Baird is connected with the Duro Pump Co., and has until recently been located as district manager in Erie, Pa. He is a graduate of Miami University and a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Mrs. Baird is also a graduate of Miami and is a member of Chi Omega Sorority. She also graduated from Central High School. Her traveling costume was a black and white ensemble, with top coat, frock and accessories harmonizing.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Baird, Jr., Dayton, the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Dean, and daughter Virginia; Mrs. Helen Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Hollencamp and daughter, Gwen, all of Dayton.

Central P. T. A. Party for Teachers Success. Activities of Central High School P. T. A. for the year were launched with auspicious success when the organization entertained with a dinner and program at the school, on Thursday evening, honoring the school faculty.

Covers for 212 members of the association, patrons of the school and honored guests were laid in the cafeteria. The delectable menu was prepared by Mr. Jacob Kany and served by members of the sophomore class.

Miss Helen Hurley furnished a program of piano music during dinner. Mr. T. H. Zell led in the singing, one song being dedicated to Miss Jean B. Elwell, who was a member of the Central faculty for a number of years. At the close of dinner, the group of sophomore students gave a "cheer" for the P. T. A.

Mrs. Charles Adair, president of the Central P. T. A., introduced the teachers present, with merry "tingles." After their welcome company adjourned to Elwell Auditorium where a splendid program was presented. Four songs, two of which were spirituals, were given by the Wilberforce University Quartette. Two plays, "Oft in the Stilly Night," and "Thursday Evening," were given by members of the dramatic class from the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club. Characters were: the Misses Lorena Paulin, May Orr, Elsie Canby, Helen Evers, Alice Rinck and Helen Ford. The Wilberforce quartette gave several other numbers later.

Twenty-two new members were received in the Central P. T. A. during the evening, including a number of fathers of Central High students.

BIBLE CLASS HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET MEETING. Of its membership of 160 women, eighty-five attended the annual banquet of the Woman's Bible Class, First M. E. Church, in the church parlors, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Charles V. Patterson was elected president, Miss Amy St. John, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Hurley, secretary; Mrs. Allen McClain, associate secretary; Mrs. David Lewis, treasurer and Mrs. Wilson Compton, associate treasurer.

The program included a reading by Mrs. A. C. Turrell. A short talk was given by the pastor, the Rev. W. N. Shank. Mrs. L. A. Parrett, chairman of the social committee, gave her year's report. The report of the secretary showed an active year and Mrs. William Smith, retiring president, expressed appreciation of the cooperation she enjoyed while in office. Mrs. Elizabeth Ray told of the flower mission work. The Ray family also furnishes flowers during the entire year for church decoration. The treasurer of the past year also reported finances.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, apical "regularity." It never gripes, Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician, knows the system. He has been practicing for forty-seven years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle easy bowel movement, but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing nat-

FAIR ENOUGH

If there were sound reasons for the United States to enter the world court under the protection of the senate reservations, what reason is there now for the United States to refuse to enter the court upon the basis of the new resolutions adopted by the Geneva conference of representatives of nations which are members of the court?

Those resolutions provide that all five of the American reservations shall be accepted, but that the members of the court, by a two-thirds majority, may later rescind their acceptance of parts of the reservations.

If they should rescind their acceptance, the United States could then avail itself of its reserved right to withdraw from the court. Thus the interests of the United States are fully safeguarded.

On the surface it may seem that the Geneva conference accepts all the reservations merely to get the United States into the court, and that the intention is to rescind the acceptance later. But there is little reason to suppose that this is the case. The truth is, rather, that parts of the American reservations give the United States a great power which the present members of the court fear may be misused; and therefore they wish to protect themselves against such misuse.

The fourth American reservation provides in part that the statute of the world court (which is the court's constitution) shall not be amended without the consent of the United States.

The fifth American reservation provides that the court shall not, without American consent, grant any request for an advisory opinion in any matter in which the United States has or claims an interest.

Now, if the United States is admitted on the basis of these reservations, it may later develop that other powers feel strongly that the interests of international peace require that the court grant an advisory opinion despite an American objection or it may develop that other powers will feel it is vitally necessary to amend the court's constitution, despite American objection.

With America standing in the way by means of these reservations, the required end could not be obtained. What, then, do these powers do now?

They now stipulate that they shall have the right, in such contingency, to withdraw their acceptance of the American reservations; in other words, to destroy America's veto power.

If at a later date they withdraw their acceptance, they will thus be telling America that they cannot get along with her in the court. She will then have the option of staying in despite the loss of her veto power, or of getting out.

In effect, the stipulation means that the other members of the court, by a two-thirds majority, shall have the right to put America out of the court. Inasmuch as America reserves the right to withdraw at any time she sees fit, there is no reason why the other members should not have the right to expel her at any time they see fit.

In exchange for our right to resign, the other powers obtain the right to expel us. That is a fair bargain.

The senate reservations provide that the president shall sign the court protocol if the members of the court accept our reservations. The Geneva conference provides for acceptance. The fact that the members may later withdraw their acceptance doesn't matter. If they accept now, that is enough. We may then enter the court on a fair basis.

HIDING THEIR FEATHERS

Will Rogers remarks that "some Americans in Europe are traveling incognito. They are not bragging on where they come from, and nobody knows they are Americans." Apparently they are not only "not bragging on where they come from," but they adopt a policy calculated to prevent the truth from being known.

It is not necessary, and it is not desirable, that an American should "hang on where he comes from"; the mannerly thing is to refrain from bragging about anything at all. But it is a different matter for an American to definitely attempt to give the impression that he is something else than an American. Unfortunately for America, such an American is an American still.

Today's Talk

WHAT PEOPLE WANT

In the first place people do not want what you think they want. There are wants and wants. And you can't put up a rule of wants applying to Tom Smith and expect that Bill Brown's wants dovetail with his.

People like to get things that they don't expect. They like surprises. They like the out-of-the-way.

Warmed over meals are all right, if you have had a taste of the original.

People want to be amused more than they want to be instructed. They like to instruct themselves. An inferior mind can give great amusement to the superior mind. But when the superior mind tries this trick on his less fortunate brothers, they fall asleep or walk out on him. Which probably explains why the college professor laughs at the clown.

None of us really knows exactly what he wants. We set a goal or see a picture in our mind that we desire made real but when the picture is finished, it has little resemblance to the one painted in our mind.

DIES ON WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Margaret Ellen Clark, 89, died at her home in Fairfield, Wednesday at 9:40 a. m. She is survived by two sons and a daughter.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 Saturday afternoon at the home and at 2 o'clock at the Fairfield Reformed Church. Burial will be in the Fairfield cemetery.

History Repeats Again

1906-TWENTY YEARS AGO-1926

Lester Barnes received a card from C. W. McDaniel and family at Cottage Hill, Fla., stating they came safely through the storm.

First meeting of the Junior Woman's Club was held with a good attendance.

H. C. Hubbell has perfected a ditching machine designed as a wonderful labor saver. "A Stranger in Town" was the best comedy that has visited Xenia for a long time. Re-opening of Zoar Church will occur Sunday, October 7.

The Theatre

Clark and McCullough, comedians, who hale from Springfield, Ohio, met with the unstinted approval of the Broadway theater critic of "The Billboard," official amusement magazine.

"Just as must have been expected by everyone who ever cast eyes and ears on the team of Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough, under the big top, on the burlesque wheel or in the 'Music Box Revue' their first legitimate musical comedy vehicle is a certain hit," the magazine says. "The Ramblers" is the title of the show and has all the attributes of a successful entertainment without the local stars. But with them it is a sure bet.

Hilarious as ever, perhaps even more than ever, is their artful low comedy, the critic says. The very best of their old material, refurbished from its burlesque show lineage and raised to the highest guarantee of laughs, is but the background for the many new "wows" furnished for the occasion of plot. Bobby Clark, with his familiar goggle-eyed spectacles pointed on his merrily deceitful countenance, with his acrobatic cigar and his bouncing cane, registers a side splitter with every antic, and every line.

As a "feeder" Paul McCullough again proves that he has few equals. "For all the merit of the production which surrounds the two comedians, less of it and more of them would be preferable. Entertaining as it is, one sits in glowing patience until Clark and McCullough reappear in their new and increasingly exaggerated interlude. Not but what they do not fit aptly into the book, but the involved exposition of the story seems almost unnecessary impediment."

THE FLOWER

I wonder, little flower, If you really know your power, Know the mighty force which weaves Root and tendril, stalk and leaves? Are those petals pink unfold Have you guessed the strength they hold?

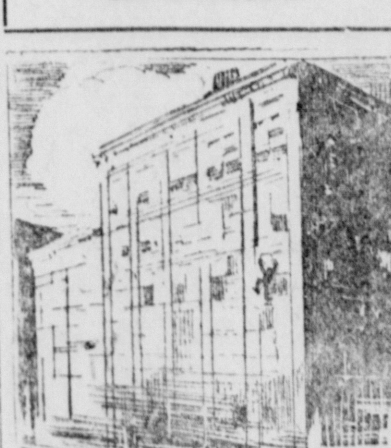

Little blossom, do you know Why upon the earth you grow? Are you conscious of the fact That you live and breathe and act? Should you wither now and die, When to remain silent. Silence is so masterful at times.

People want happiness. And the only possible way to get happiness, it seems to me, is to give it. This is the sure method whereby you get it.

Do you weary of the sun And the growing to be done? Do you sometimes think it vain That you brave the wind and rain? Do you think that life's severe Wanting so much beauty here?

Little blossom, have you guessed How you comfort the distressed? How you lighten with your grace Many a bleak and barren place? Are you conscious as you grow That this old world needs you so?

Safety Zones—FOR—Dollars

THE HUMAN FLY STUNT IN INVESTING

In placing dollars within a normal zone of safety, the investor should not pick, as a model, some conspicuous exception to a well-established rule. There are two ways in which this is likely to happen to the investor who places his funds in common stocks.

The first pitfall is lack of diversification; the second, specialties. Diversification is simply not placing all of one's eggs in one basket and then watching the basket placed all their eggs in one basket and then watching the basket. A few of them have made fortunes in that way, and among them we might put Ford with motors, Duke with tobacco, Schwab and Carnegie with steel, Eastman with the kodak and Wrigley with chewing gum. There are many more. In fact, if we should make a list of them, he might be inclined to believe that they had the correct form of investing. Yet they are only a very few among many and are the conspicuous exceptions to the rule of diversification. In the long run the majority of investors cannot come out on the right side of the ledger following that method.

The other popular manner of investing is getting into specialties. For instance, Gillette, Commercial Solvents and Cast Iron Pipe all started with small issues of stock and advanced spectacularly. Undoubtedly at the time they started, they were speculative, highly speculative. There is no way of figuring how many dollars have been lost in other ventures of similar degree of risk, for every dollar made in the successes. The failures undoubtedly exceed the successes enormously.

The type of dare-devil known as a "human fly" scales a 20-story building and may receive several hundred dollars, for an hour or two of effort. Very few men could duplicate that performance, even if the reward were a million dollars. No more can the average individual successfully employ the methods of business and financial geniuses. Whenever he places his savings in one enterprise or in that type of enterprise known as a specialty he is trying to imitate the "human fly's" hazardous feat, without having the "human fly's" peculiar capabilities.

The safety zone for dollars is on the ground, and to be safe for the investor the ground must be paved with diversification in enterprises which for many years have proved their ability to make money in a necessary field.

SUICIDE VERDICT GIVEN BY CORONER FOLLOWING PROBE

Verdict of suicide was rendered by Coroner R. L. Haines, Jamestown, following an inquest Thursday into the death of J. E. Stull, 51, Yellow Springs business man and member of the firm of Beall Electrical Co., who ended his life by firing a revolver bullet through his right temple in the company's office early Thursday morning.

Relatives believe that the man had been brooding over the death of his wife two years ago and that melancholy led to the fatal shooting.

Surviving are two brothers, Ralph, Yellow Springs, and Charles, Morrow, and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Michael, W. Main St., Xenia.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Ralph Stull in Yellow Springs Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock and again at 2 o'clock at Woodland Cemetery Chapel in Xenia. Interment will be made in Woodland.

East Side - West Side

OF

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

Years ago—oh, so many years ago, is seems—when I first came to New York to chisel my name on "some great newspaper on Park Row," one of my first assignments was to cover a wedding at the Little Church Around the Corner, an Episcopal church, at One East Twenty-ninth Street.

As a kid out in Ohio I had often read of this romantic little edifice but somehow I had come to associations of New York. To me it was just a name. When as a reporter, I saw the quaint little building nestled among the shrubs and trees in East Twenty-ninth Street, I wondered how it came by its name. I asked several persons at the wedding but none could tell me.

The other day I re-visited the little church to hear the boys' choir. While there I talked with an old theatrical man who told me this story:

"Years ago, while a little of the Mid-Victorian spirit lingered in Gotham, an old actor died. His friends, wishing to honor him in death as he had often been honored in life, went to one of the leading ministers on Fifth Avenue and asked him to officiate at the obsequies. The holy man was quite horrified by the request. He believed the theatre to be the anteroom of hades, or words to that effect. 'But,' he said, 'there's a little church around the corner where the funeral might be held.'

"And now, is it any wonder that we of the theatre look upon the Little Church Around the Corner with deepest respect and love? Is it any wonder that we take our children there to be baptized, to be married, to be returned to their gods?"

"And is it strange that six of the choir boys are sons of theatre folk?"

Is it? I'll leave it to you.

CUCUMBER PICKLES

There are many recipes for cucumber pickles—both ripe and the small (gherkins). Here are two excellent ones:

Ripe Cucumber Pickles: Dissolve two and one-half teaspoons of powdered alum (level) in each quart of water used, heating the mixture to the boiling point with the cucumbers in it (sliced lengthwise) and then drawing to back or range for two and one-half hours. Now take the pickles from the alum water and chill them on ice. Over the fire put one quart of cider vinegar in which you have put six cups of granulated sugar (heaping), one-third cup each of whole clover and stick cinnamon, and one tablespoon of allspice berries. Bring this liquid to the boil, let simmer five minutes, then cook the heated cucumbers for twelve minutes. Remove cucumbers to a stone crock, turn the hot vinegar over them, and let stand overnight. In the morning drain the vinegar-syrup off the pickles, bring it to the boiling point, and once more pour it over the pickles in the jar. Repeat this process for two more mornings, each time scalding the syrup by itself and turning it over the pickles and cucumbers. Weight down the pickles and store till needed in a cool dry place.

Gherkin Pickles: Merely wipe four quarts of the small unripe cucumbers with clean cloths. Place them in a stone jar and over them pour eight cups of boiling water in which you have dissolved one and one-fourth cups of salt. Let stand three days without touching. Then drain off this brine, put brine over the fire by itself, bring it to the boiling point, and again pour it over the gherkins in the crock. Let stand three days, then once more drain from pickles, bring to the boil, and turn it over the gherkins in the crock, to stand there for three more days. At the end of this period, drain gherkins from brine and wipe them with clean cloths. Over them pour one gallon of boiling water in which is dissolved one and one-fourth tablespoons of alum; let pickles stand in this alum-water five hours before draining them and cooking them a few at a time, to remineralize in the following mixture.

To one gallon of cider vinegar add three red sweet peppers cut in small pieces (seeds discarded), three sticks cinnamon, two tablespoons allspice berries, and one tablespoon of whole cloves; let boil ten minutes before putting pickles in it. When all pickles are cooked in this mixture, place them in a crock and strain the same mixture over them.

Do You Sing In Your Bath ?

Quite a-tuh-do was made over this practice by a lady writer in one of the Woman's Magazines and it was all very exciting and important and VERY thrilling! Very!

She went on to state that SHE did quite a bit of singing while bathing in SPITE of the fact tha she had only a medium sort of voice and she was VERY decided about how singing in one's tub showed a big, fine nature, all broke out in kindness, thoughtfulness and charity.

And this all may be so. I hope it is. ANY singing that comes from a soul bursting with happiness SOUNDS good, even if the singer sings off key. I was GOING to say a few words about the importance of good bath fixtures and accessories for really GOOD singing but I choked out that idea for it sounded so mercenary and business like, so I'll not mention that point at all.

DOC SAYRE.

SHORTY SAYS:-
I think that Doc should be ashamed of himself calling attention to a lady singing in her bath! If someone doesn't call a halt on him, he'll be using this column for a kinda confession magazine. In MY opinion a bath is a personal private matter NOT to be exploited at all. It's all very embarrassing to Me!

Do You Sing In Your Bath ?

FOR MEN ONLY!
That means that you lady folks are going to read this clear through! I'll bet you do! What we wanted to suggest to the men was to think of THIS store when they need Poker Chips, Playing Cards, Styptic Pencils, Razors, Strops, Soap, Tweezers and Shaving lotions. Is that fair?

HOW'S YOUR BITE?
Are you taking first-class care of these teeth you grew so many years ago? Are they white and clean and healthy? Klezno Toothpaste used in conjunction with Klezno Mouth Wash is probably the finest combination for teeth perfection ever discovered. Get BOTH at the same time.

ELECTRICITY AS WE KNOW IT!
Fans are a little outta date NOW but Curling Irons, Electric Irons, Flashlights, Heating Pads and Hot Plates are ALWAYS desirable and knowing this we have outfitted ourselves THOROUGHLY in the best grades of ALL this sort of stuff. All prices too.

FOR THE "AT HOME INVALID"
Our Hospital Dept. offers scores of little comforts to those whose lives must be spent indoors. Such things as Bed-Pans, Drinking Tubes, Sputum Cups, Eye Cups, Atomizers, Fountain Syringes, Hot Water Bottles, etc. Many other conveniences are obtainable through our catalogues.

GOT THE LAST SUMMER PICTURE?
In a few weeks now the shrubs, trees and flowers will creep away for their winter nap. IT MIGHT be a good idea to get 5 or 6 good "snaps" of how the old home looked in 1926. We carry a full line of Kodak Cameras and our "Film Service" is on a 18 hour basis. We THINK we're pretty good on this work.

"Not Possible To Classify"

FOR OLD TIMERS

I have been looking through some old books and have found some very interesting verses written on the thumb-worn pages. Wonder if you wouldn't enjoy reading them as much as I did? Here they are:

Remember well and bear in mind
A faithful friend is hard to find;
And if you find one, good and true,
Change not that old friend for a new.

If you want to go to heaven,
Look on page seventy-seven.

Speak gently! It is better far
To rule by love than fear;
Speak gently, let no harsh words mar
The good we might do here.

There are hours long departed which memory brings,
Like blossoms of Eden, to twine round the heart,
And as time rushes by on the might of his wings
They may darken awhile, but they never depart.

I sat me down and thought profound,
This maxim wise I drew:
'Tis easier far to like a girl
Than make a girl like you.

When you are married
And live across the sea
Bring all your kids
And come and see me.

Remember the old "Memory Gems" you had to give each morning in school? My favorite one was "Honesty is the best policy." After I gave it I would get busy and cheat on my history examination.

DIFFERENT

"A glass bottle is made
Of glass," said Dubber.
"But a hot water bottle
Is made of rubber."

An editor in Iowa seems to run things pretty much his own way out there according to the following item which appeared in his paper recently: "Owing to lack of space and the rush of editing this issue, several births and deaths will be postponed until next week."

ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN

GOLDEN TEXT: "Come thou with us, and we will do thee good." Numbers 10:29. TIME: B.C. 1490. PLACE: The Valley before Sinai. PERSONS: Moses and all the people. LESSON TEXT: Numbers 10:11-13, 29-36. 11. And it came to pass in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth day of the month, that the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle of the testimony. 12. And the children of Israel set forward according to their journeys out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud shined in the wilderness of Paran. 13. And they first took their journey according to the commandment of Jehovah by Moses. 29. And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Reuel the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, "We are journeying unto the place of which Jehovah said, I will give it to you; come thou with us, and we will do thee good: for Jehovah hath spoken good concerning Israel."

20. And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred. 31. And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou shalt be to us instead of eyes. 32. And it shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that what good soever Jehovah shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee. 33. And they set forward from the mount of Jehovah three days' journey; and the ark of the covenant of Jehovah went before them three days' journey to seek out a resting-place for them. 34. And the cloud of Jehovah was over them by day, when they set forward from the camp. 35. And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, Rise up, O Jehovah, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee. 36. And when it rested, he said, Return, O Jehovah, unto the ten thousands of the thousand of Israel.

INTRODUCTION: The scripture and the story suggest the heavenly guides in the earthly pilgrimage. We find many helpful analogies. "The path of life we walk today is as strange as that the Hebrews trod; we need the shadowy rock, as they; we need, like them, the guides of God." God furnishes many guides to man such as the Bible, His shining providences, His Holy Spirit, and Conscience. When we realize and observe the many pitfalls and dangers that confront us we can readily see the necessity of these. A true conception of these are included in a well rounded life when we accept these God given guides. When we have accepted these guides we must guide others. It is our pilgrimage, as believers, to be conscious of the Divine guidance and favor. We must be thankful for past and pray for future guidance. All who are Heavenly guided are brought into the Heavenly Canaan. God's guides are true to us and we must obey them. The tasks and business of the Hebrews were completed here at Sinai, and now they begin to pull their tents and to march towards Canaan. They thought the journey would not be a long one, but our plans do not always materialize as we plan, we often come to unexpected detours. God plans our goals and we must let Him be the absolute guide of our lives and destinies, and we will be far happier. Strangely, but surely as the lives of two men cross by the hand of God, Moses was a babe found on the rushes, on the edge of the River Nile, educated at the King's court in Egypt, while Hobab was a Midianite sheik who in the desert, Moses kills a man in Egypt and must flee for his life, and he goes to the desert where he meets Zipporah, daughter of Hobab, with whom he falls in love and marries. They live there in Midian for forty years then Moses is called back into Egypt to deliver the children of God from bondage. Thus the lives of these two men are separated again. Moses leads the MORE people through the Red Sea and for forty years toward the land of Canaan. Shortly after leaving the Red Sea Moses' father-in-law, here called Hobab, again, and Moses wanted him to go with him.

ON THE ROAD TO CANAAN: God has carefully planned and brought the things about that lead up to this lesson. He brought the Hebrews out of the land of bondage and started them on the road to the promised Canaan, wherein they were to be used as an example to show what God can do with a nation or people, that is willing to obey Him. Moses and Hobab were ever journeying along and after all that is what we are doing. We have various roads to travel, we are traveling in our thoughts and purposes and plans. Life is a journey, no one can hold the wheels of destiny back. We must move on, here we have no abiding city.

OUR WAYS PART: When we read of the way that Moses planned to go and the way that Hobab intended to go, we realize that we are not all going the same way or taking the road the same through life, and we are not going to the same place. The widest divergences in life are the moral and spiritual. If we are all going to the same place we must all get on the same road.

TRAVELING TOGETHER ON THE SAME ROAD: "Come with us," said Moses to Hobab. No force caused Hobab (Jethro) to go along the road to the promised land; he could have gone to Canaan with Moses. Men need not be separated along the moral road of life but there is ample room for us all in the church, and in the kingdom of God, and He is not willing that any of us should perish in the wilderness, because there is ample room in Heaven for us. "In my Father's house are many mansions."

UNSELFISHNESS: The true Christian life is unselfish. "It shall be that what good soever Jehovah shall do to us, the same will we do unto thee." This spirit is quite different from the spirit of the world. We note the selfishness of the young German monarch, William II, when he banished the great Bismarck, because he wanted all the glory of the crown to himself. How different was Paul, the veteran of Christian warfare, when he said that Christ had laid up a crown of righteousness for him in the after life, and not for him alone but for all "who loved His appearing." 11 Tim. 4:8. In the Christian life there are crowns for all of us.

THE SAFEST AND BEST LIFE POLICY: "For Jehovah hath spoken good concerning Israel." If we travel together "God and Christ, our fellow Christians will do us good and be of benefit to us." The Christian fellowship will do us good, because the Christian life knits itself into the life of God. Let us cease our wandering through this world and let Him lead us to that Heavenly Canaan.

THE ARK ADVANCES: As the Israelites journeyed "the ark of the covenant of Jehovah went before them." The ark was the symbol of God's presence and guidance. We often get impatient and want to see far ahead, but we must be content with the realization that God will guide us if we only permit Him to do so. As the cloud and pillar of fire moved before the ark, so will God point the sure and safe way for us to journey across this tangled and selfish world.

PATIENT EARTHLY TOILERS

Who weep by bending willows and sing on the hilltops; Who believe where they cannot see, and do where they cannot know; Who sob, softly, in the night, yet smile, bravely, in the day; Who reach up with the hand of faith and touch, fearlessly, the arm of God— To that great, heroic company who, unknown and unheeded, do, with a fine courage, the work of God, in God's own world.

So at last they were all ready, and passed the desert once more, and came to Jacob with the wonderful news—"Joseph is still alive, and is governor over all the land of Egypt!" But the old man, little wonder, would not believe them. Yet, in the end, when they had given him all Joseph's loving messages, and he had gone out and seen the long train of Egyptian wagons waiting to carry him and his down to Egypt, the truth began to dawn upon him and he plucked up heart and said: "It is enough, Joseph, my son, is still alive. I will go and see him before I die." In due time, therefore, Jacob and his sons and all that they had made their journey into Egypt. Who so glad as Joseph when he heard that they were drawing near? He mounted his chariot and drove in haste to the eastern frontier to meet them, and when the aged father and the son whom he had deemed dead for so long met at last, they fell in one another's arms and wept for a long time without speaking a word. Then Jacob drew back, and looked upon his son, and said only this, "Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive."

So Joseph drove on before the slow-moving wagons to tell Pharaoh of the coming of his father and his brethren; and because they were shepherds, he arranged that they should dwell near the eastern border of Egypt, in the land of Goshen, lest the native Egyptians should trouble them. For the desert chiefs who had conquered Egypt and who now ruled over it were, at the first, shepherds even as Jacob himself was, and therefore, the Egyptians of native blood hated the very name of shepherd. But for that same reason, Jacob and his sons were the land of Goshen. Last of all, in the joy of his heart, Joseph brought his aged father before the King. When Jacob came into the royal presence-chamber the old man lifted his wrinkled hand and blessed the King; and Pharaoh was well pleased, for in those days even royalty revered old age, and thought it no shame to be blessed by an old man, how humble so ever he might be. "My age is one hundred and thirty years; but, my days have been few and evil compared with those of my fathers." Then once more Jacob blessed His Majesty, and went forth from the royal presence.

So Joseph gave to his father and his brethren of the best of the land of Egypt in Goshen, even as the King commanded, and they and all that they had settled down in their new home in peace and quietness, under the shield of their brother's strong arm. The five remaining years of famine passed slowly and wearily away; and though the people of Egypt were in sore straits ere all was done, yet Joseph's foresight prevailed, and at last the good years came back again. For twelve years more Jacob lived with his sons in Goshen, and saw and heard the wonder of Joseph's power and wisdom.

The Girl Who Dared

CHAPTER 15 THE BEAUTY PARLOR

"One must suffer to be beautiful," says the old French proverb. Here in New York, wherever and whenever a few women were gathered together, the conversation invariably turned to beauty topics, to rejuvenating topics, to the latest diet craze, the slimming fad!

Shop windows everywhere displayed "reducing" girdles. Almightily uncomfortable to the wearer—yes—despite the glowing "ads."

Nibbling lettuce-leaves, like rabbits, evidently brought beauty, too. One mustn't touch potatoes, bread, or sweets of any sort.

The New York women were heroes in the beauty and rejuvenation fad. They read every scrap of information in the daily papers. Whenever Mary went to the talk sooner or later turned to the Voronoff or Steinach operation, to the plastic surgeon who made crooked noses straight, to the marvelous doctor who took thirty years clear off one's age by "face-lifting," removing every wrinkle, every trace of time from the human countenance.

There were chiropractors, too, who for a pretty stiff consideration—"manipulated" the spinal column, restoring youthful circulation.

Endless massage, too, where-with to combat growing avaricious.

All the New York women were interested in what is technically called the Daily Dozen.

"Morning exercises," explained Luella Loder to her niece's secretary. "You do them each a dozen times. It only takes from ten to fifteen minutes, and the results are simply marvelous."

The results were rather wonderful, Mary thought.

But oh! the time and trouble that these women spent!

Luella herself had a set of photograph records which "dictated" the movements of the morning drill, to which she rigidly adhered.

Mary—luckily—was slim. She could eat anything she fancied without growing over plump.

"But you'd better be careful with ice cream sodas and chocolate nut sundae," Luella had rather disconcertingly warned her, she herself having a tendency to put on weight. "They're wonderful to taste, but simply ruinous to the figure."

Today, as the two girls shot up by elevator to a very celebrated New York beauty parlor on Fifth Avenue, Mary was again forcibly reminded of the beauty craze.

The place was crammed with women. The majority of these women were not young. They were all smartly dressed, however. "Chic" they all possessed, to a greater or less degree.

"Men are lovely to us women, but they're fickle," explained Luella to the younger girl. "Luella was in a sort of mood today, and quite communicative."

"Fickle?"

"Yes. They tire quickly of what they've got. As they get on in years and finance, they're forever on the track of something new."

"But the married ones?" queried Mary, interested.

"Oh, they're the worst," Luella gave a laugh that somehow had just a tinge of anxiety or bitterness about it. "When they achieve their hearts' desire in a business way, they suddenly wake up and look about them. Business has absorbed them for maybe twenty years or more. They find themselves extremely rich, successful. But the wives—poor darlings—are no longer young."

Mary looked perplexed.

"Still—these women are their wives."

Luella laughed and shrugged her shoulders in sophisticated fashion.

"Yes. But for how long? Don't you know how many marriages finish in divorce?"

A tall girl in a grey linen over-all led them to a booth, saying that Monsieur Jacques would be with them instantly.

The place was full of other booths, all occupied. There were several women waiting their turn. Negro maids, white-capped white-aproned, ran hither and thither with jugs of shampoo liquid, "setting" combs and the like. The pretty girls in grey, with exquisitely coiffured heads, gave beauty treatments, face-massages, mud-masks, manicures, etc.

"Oh yes, men are fickle," resumed Luella, as she and Mary were seated in their special booth.

"All the world says they're chivalrous. And so they are too, in their way. They're rightfully generous with money. But when they're getting up in years, and have been successful down in Wall Street, you can take it from me that the majority of 'em are after youth and beauty, every time. Hence the mad rush of the wives to beauty parlors! Quaint, and just a little bit pathetic, don't you think?"

Mary quite agreed.

"If it weren't for the alimony," proceeded Miss Luella, leaning back in a swivel chair, and yawning. "I'm convinced an awful lot of 'em would have a new wife every three months or so and chuck the old. It's the same all the world over, practically."

"That's terrible," commented Mary, half incredulous.

"True; just the same," Luella picked up a chamomile polisher, and in an abstracted manner began polishing her rosy finger nails. "It's only the alimony that keeps them back. The judges are mighty good to women. They understand the Turkish proclivities of their own sex—or maybe I ought to say Mormonish?" And she giggled.

Mary was silent. She was quite sure that Philip Andover was not of this type.

Luella, clever, read her thought. "Andover's young, and unsuccessful, so he doesn't count as yet. But just let him have inherited that fortune, and give him another twenty years or so, and it would be quite some job for a middle-aged wife to hold him, you can bet."

Then, as Mary looked indignant, Luella added, graciously: "Of course, Philip's lived quite some time in Paris. And though that's supposed not to be faithful to their wives in the absolute literal sense, they don't like divorce much, and they keep on respecting and caring for their wives and are good providers. Yes, I think French marriages might be successful, if you ask me."

A girl in grey came to shampoo Luella's hair, preparatory to the "permanent waving," so the discourse was temporarily interrupted.

When Luella's hair was being dried, Mary inquired: "What do you think of English women?"

"Not so frumpish as they used to be, and quite companionable with men. The Englishman is handsome and conceited, beautifully dressed. He's not such a woman-chaser as the men over here. He's not as generous, because he can't afford to be. He rather fancies himself as a little tin-god. I admire Englishmen terribly, but I'd fight with them. I'm afraid, you see. They'd think so, too."

The discourse was interrupted by a white-capped negro maid with Mrs. Rachel Dworja, of Lithuania, was admitted to America after a long struggle with New York immigration authorities. She admitted ninety-four, but officials said she deducted six years from her age to facilitate her entrance.

a whole tray of "curlers." The beautifying process was about to start.

"You want Monsieur Jacques himself?" queried the girl in grey. "He charges fifty per cent extra for his services. The assistants come cheaper. If you have one of them, it's only forty dollars, but Monsieur Jacques charges sixty dollars."

Luella did not seem put about. "I'll have Jacques. He's a wiz at 'winding,' isn't he?"

"Yes," said the grey assistant. Then Monsieur Jacques himself arrived. He was the owner of the beauty parlor. Assisted by the girl in grey and the negro maid, he wound Luella's locks round curlers, dragging the hair so tightly at the roots that the client winced with pain. "Never mind me," said she stoically. "The tighter you pull the string, the better the curl will be. Proceed."

The entire head surface was divided into squares of less than an inch. Each strand of hair was tightly wound round a pencil-shaped bit of metal, hollow, and secured in place by string. The string dragged painfully at the roots.

But worse was yet to come. Luella knew it.

Cardboard cartons were slipped over the metal tubes, the ends tied once again with string, straining the hair away from the scalp in agonizing fashion.

A sort of chandeller of larger tubes—metal, and a size larger than the cartons—hung above Luella's head. Monsieur Jacques and the negro maid gently lowered the chandeller, and the painful task commenced, of forcing Luella's locks inside forty of these metal tubes.

Little pads of cotton wool were placed between the metal and the scalp, and further augmented by cardboard discs, the size and shape of a fifty-cent piece.

"To prevent the head being burned," explained Monsieur Jacques airily.

"Ow! Ouch!" moaned Luella, as the chandeller, now containing every scrap of her hair, was raised some inches overhead.

The heat was then turned on, by means of electric switches. "Don't move the fraction of an inch, whatever you do," cautioned the proprietor.

"Ow! Ugh! It hurts! It's burning me!" Then: "Strung up to the ceiling by my hair! Blue-beard's wife isn't in it!"

A sizzling noise went on inside the metal tubes.

"I've an appointment for tea at Sherry's, and I'm already late," grumbled Luella. Then, to Mary: "John Rogers doesn't like to be kept waiting."

Luella gave a scream of pain and
